CHURCHES TO HOLD SPECIAL SERVICES DURING HOLY WEEK

Pre-Easter Religious Activities Will Start on Monday Evening

Holy Week services will be held at most Appleton churches this week, some starting Monday evening. Special music and sermons on Easter topics will be offered at all churches.

Services will be held at the First Methodist church Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. The Rev. J. A. Holmes, pastor, will preach four sermons, and the quartet and chorus choir will sing at alternate services. Receiving hours will be the pastor's topic Monday evening, when the quartet will sing "Oh, Divine Redeemer" by Gounod. "The Spiritual Cost" will be the subject Tuesday. The chorus choir will sing "Lord Most Holy" a selection from the oratorio "Stabat Mater" by Rossini. Dr. Holmes will talk on "Numbered with the Transgressors" and the quartet will sing "Down to Calvary" by Parker at the Wednesday service. Calvary will be the topic Thursday and the chorus will sing "Jesus, Lord Jesus" from "The Crucifixion" by Stainer. The entire communion service Friday evening will be sung by the chorus choir. Mrs. Marion Huchingson, Music Committee, soprano, will sing "There Is a Garden in Her Face" by Gounod, prior to the service. Easter Sunday a special service will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning and an Easter pageant. The Consecration of St. Gallahad" will be sung.

Holy week services at the First Congregational church will open with the last instruction class by the pastor Tuesday evening. A sacramental service for baptism and communion will be held Thursday evening and a liturgical service Friday evening. "The Seven Last Words of Christ," a cantata by Max Baer, will be sung by the choir and soloists. Dean Carl J. Waterman of Lawrence Conservatory of Music, is director of the choir. Special Easter services will be held in the church school at 9:45 Easter morning, at the 11 o'clock morning service, the Christian Endeavor society meeting at 6:30 in the evening, and at 7:30 in the evening. The motion picture in the evening will be "The Heritage of Faith" showing how the risen Christ still inspires the hearts of men. The church quartet will sing Easter music.

PLAN SUNRISE SERVICE

A union sunrise service of the Star League, composed of representatives from young people's societies of the city, will be held at the Presbyterian church at 6:30 Sunday morning. R. M. Eickmeyer, activities secretary at the Y. M. C. A., will give the address.

German communion services will be held Maunday Thursday at 7:45 in the evening at St. Matthew Lutheran church. The English communion services will be held Good Friday evening. The Rev. P. A. C. Froehke will preach sermons at each of the meetings. Two church services have been planned for Easter morning at 10:15 in German language and at 10:30 in English. Organ and choir music will be featured. Mr. Froehke will talk on the resurrection of Christ. Herman Juhnke is director of the choir. Miss Genevieve Jens, organist for the English services, and Miss Evelyn Bergman for the German.

Mount Olive Lutheran church will observe the Lord's supper at services at 7:45 Thursday evening and at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Jesus Led from Pontius Pilate to Calvary will be the subject of a sermon by the Rev. W. G. Ziesemer at a service at 7:45 Friday evening. The church choir will sing an Easter cantata "From Gethsemane to Calvary" at this service. Prof. F. H. Jebe is director of the chorus. Special Easter music has been planned for the Sunday services.

A new mass by Leonard for four voices will be sung at the Easter masses at Sacred Heart Catholic church at 7:20, 9 o'clock and 10 o'clock Sunday morning. All day adoration of the first sacrament will be held Thursday at the church. Friday night there will be services of the Way of the Cross.

The mission held at St. Joseph Catholic church will be continued through Holy week for men. Women were admitted to the mission last week. Masses will be held at 5 o'clock and 8 o'clock in the morning and the pastor in charge will preach sermons at 7:30 each evening, through Friday. The mission will close Good Friday.

Services of the way of the cross will be held at St. Mary Catholic church Good Friday evening. The usual Holy week services will be held 8 o'clock Friday morning and 7:20 Friday evening, and at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. The regular masses will be sung.

HOLD TEMPLARS SERVICE

Devotional services with addresses by the Rev. Henry S. Gatty, rector, will be held at All Saints Episcopal church at 4:20 in the afternoon of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. An event of Holy week will be the topic for each of the talks. Services will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and at 10 o'clock in the morning and 7:45 in the evening Friday. A special devotional service set forth by the late Bishop Arthur C. Coxe will be held in the evening. Easter services will be at 7:20 and 11 o'clock Sunday morning and the annual service of the commandery of Knights Templars will be held at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The knights will attend in a body.

Emmanuel Evangelical church will have services at 7:20 Thursday night, 10 o'clock Friday morning and at 7:20 in the evening. Sermons preached will be at each of these by the pastor, the Rev. H. A. Bernhardt. The regular Easter service will be arranged at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and the Junior League of the church will present a program at 7:30 in the evening. Communion will be celebrated at a German service at St. John Evangelical church Good Friday evening, and at an English service Wednesday evening. Communion services will be combined with the regular Easter program at 10:15 Sunday morning in English. A cantata "The Prince of Life" will be sung by the choir at a service at 7:45 in the evening. Roger Benedict is director of the choir.

Communion services will be held at St. Paul Lutheran church at 7:25 Thursday evening in English, Friday evening in German, at 9 o'clock Friday morning in English and at 10:15 in German. Special Easter and communion services will be arranged at 9 o'clock Sunday morning in English and at 10:15 in German. Devotional services will be held at 10:15 Easter Monday morning in the German language.

Zion Lutheran church will have special English Lenten services at 7:30 Wednesday evening and confessional and communion services at 7:30 Thursday evening in German, at 10:15 Friday morning in English and at 7:30 Friday night in English. Special English services will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning. The church choir and children's chorus will sing a cantata "Praise and Honor" at Easter programs at 9 o'clock Sunday morning in English and at 10:15 in German.

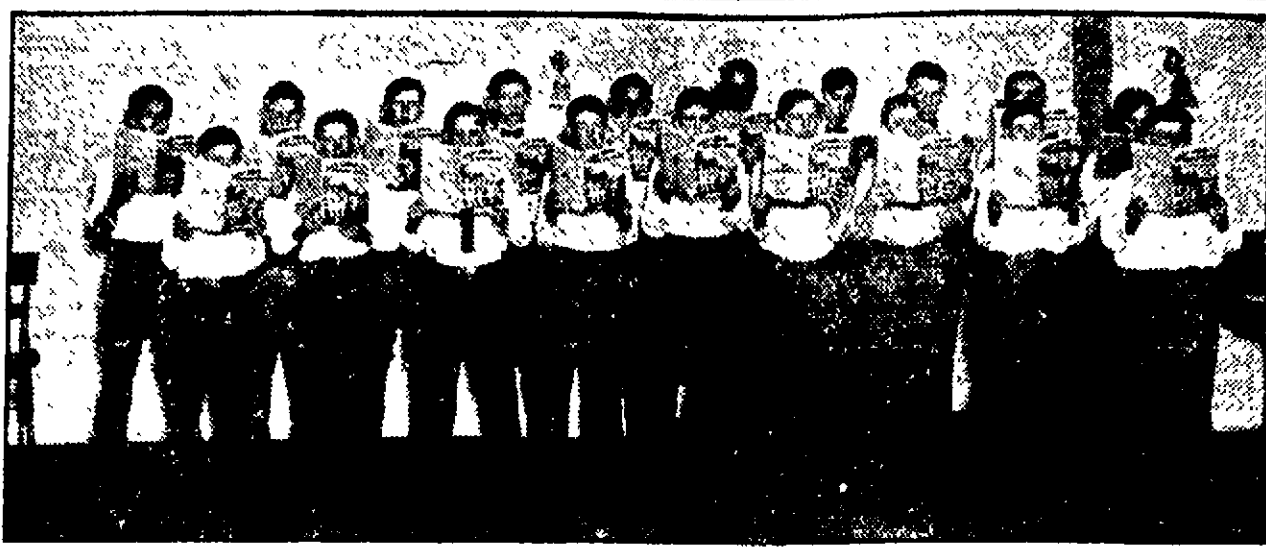

The last of a series of Lenten services will be held Wednesday evening at the First English Lutheran church. Preparatory services will be held Thursday evening and a memorial and communion service Good Friday evening. A sunrise service has been planned at 6 o'clock Sunday morning and the principal Easter program will be at 10:30 in the morning when holy communion will be celebrated.

The sixth of a series of lectures on the prodigal son will be given by the Rev. F. L. Schreckenberg of Trinity English Evangelical church at 7:30 Thursday evening. His topic will be the Elder Brother. Preparatory and holy communion services will be held Friday evening and the sermon subject will be the Cross of Christ. A musical service will be directed by Edward Kuehler at 10:30 Sunday morning.

One hour services will be held at 7:30 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at Memorial Presbyterian church. Communion will be celebrated Friday evening and no members will be received into the church. Sermons will be preached at the evening meetings by the Rev. Virgil P. Scott on the Great Facts of Passion Week, Easter morning at 11 o'clock a musical program and sermon will be given and the Sunday school will have charge of a program at 4 o'clock at the church.

Preaching services will be held at the German Methodist Episcopal church at 7:30 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. Prof. Frank Grether of Mission House college at Plymouth will be in charge of the services at the First Reformed church at 10:15 Friday morning, in German and at 7:30 in the evening in German. Prof. Alvin Grether of the college, will be in charge of the Easter services Sunday. Evangelistic topics will be discussed by the Rev. E. M. Salter of the First Baptist church at Holy Week services Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

16 Junior High School Boys Demonstrate Singing At National Convention

Dr. Carl L. Baker, supervisor of music in the Appleton schools, will take a group of 16 junior high school boys to Springfield, Ill., to the annual conference of music supervisors of the United States on Tuesday. The boys will be used to demonstrate the principles of teaching boys' singing as they are explained by Dr. Baker. A group of 15 boys from the Springfield schools who have not had the same type of music training as the Appleton boys will be used to demonstrate how quickly and easily the boys will react to such training. In the Springfield schools the boys and girls sing together which is against the music psychology of the Appleton educator.

Junior high school singing has not been satisfactory generally throughout the country because music supervisors have not understood the peculiar needs of the adolescent boy, Dr. Baker says. The physical and mental changes taking place within him prevent his reacting favorably to the same type of instruction given to the senior high school or to the elementary grades.

The anatomy of the larynx undergoes a sudden and great change, Dr. Baker will tell the supervisors. The vocal chords become nearly double their former size during adolescence, and as the chords grow longer the voice becomes lower in pitch. In the transition era the voice retains its high soprano tones but it has an alto quality. The boy must sing low if he is to conserve his voice for singing in later years, Dr. Baker has found. He must sing lower to take care of the larynx. Few boys who continue to sing soprano after the adolescent period has begun have first quality voices later, he said. As the boy grows to manhood with all the physical changes suggesting growth so must his voice be trained lower to fit the growing larynx, Dr. Baker says. The few adult tenors in America, he believes, are due to forcing soprano voices after adolescence. The Music Supervisors National Research council will undertake its next study what effect forcing high soprano on the adolescent boy has on the small number of tenors in this country.

When a voice breaks it has been forced upward in compass just before the period of change, the supervisor said. There is not a single case of vocal inability in Appleton except where there may be some vocal disease, he stated. There is an old theory that boys should not sing during voice mutation but this is no more true than that they should not exercise their growing muscles. The voice should be exercised as well as the body, the supervisor believes.

The gang spirit is one of the important features of the adolescent age and although educators have recognized the spirit they have failed to connect with it as a basis for social life. Girls are not admitted to the gang life of the boy and they should not be admitted to his singing class because they hamper his best work, the supervisor said. Between the ages of 12 and 16 years boys have nothing in common with girls. They are timid and self-conscious when singing with them and they are afraid to make mistakes because the girls will laugh at them.

Boys naturally want to think they

SCHOLARSHIPS IN COLLEGES OFFERED

High School Seniors With High Scholastic Averages Are Eligible

Scholarships to middle western colleges open to high school graduates with high scholastic averages have been announced. Appleton high school seniors may compete for these scholarships, it was stated.

The student graduating with the highest average in his class will be given a year's tuition at Ripon college. An offer made by Beloit college gives the senior with the highest average in his class credit for $75 a year for four years.

Competitive scholarships are awarded by Northwestern university at Evanston, Ill. They are granted on the basis of the high school record and ability of the candidate. A sum of $100 or more is given to freshmen students who are chosen for the scholarships and an additional sum of $50 is awarded at the end of the first semester to approximately 10 per cent of those freshmen holding scholarships and having the highest academic records. Applications must be made not later than May 1.

A year's tuition is offered by the College of St. Teresa at Winona, Minn., to girls only. The scholarship may be renewed for three consecutive years in favor of any student who continues to maintain a high rank in her work. The scholarship is given

MISSIONARY URGES MEN TO ATTEND SERVICES

The Rev. James Stanton of Fargo, N. D., encouraged members of St. Joseph Holy Name society to attend the mission for men at the church this week at the monthly breakfast and meeting of the society at the church hall Sunday morning. About 750 members attended holy communion in a body at 8 o'clock and most of these were at the meeting in the hall after the church service. This was the largest attendance at any of the meetings this season. Father Stanton is conducting a mission at the church every day until Good Friday evening.

As to the girl making the highest average during her high school matriculation.

Women's Hygienic Problem

Handled new way—Discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

WOMEN'S greatest business and social handicap has finally been overcome by a new hygienic way called Kotex, which 8 in 10 better class women now use.

✓ You dispose of Kotex as easily as tissue. Which ends the problem of laundry or disposal.

You wear lightest, flimsiest gowns in safety and without fear. For Kotex protects absolutely under all conditions. It's 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads. Deodorizes, too!

Obtain at any store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX." Many stores have it already wrapped for you to pick up, and take home without even asking.

Package of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine, for only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

ROADS SOME BETTER BUT TRAVELING IS FAR FROM PLEASURE

Frost Is Coming Out of Ground and Highways Are Improving

Madison—(P)—Earth and gravel sections to state highways improved some last week but weather conditions have not been favorable to good roads the weekly report of the state highway commission says.

Reports from northern Wisconsin indicate that the frost is out of the ground.

"There is no route passable from the southern section of the state to Eau Claire or the Twin Cities," the report continues. "All highways leading to northern and northwestern sections of the state are closed at one point or another due to mud."

The detailed report follows:

No. 10—Open Beloit to Portage. Some soft frost places south of Madison. Passable north of Portage to Merrill. Closed except for short distances north of Merrill.

No. 11—Open from Dubuque to a few miles south of Lancaster. Heavy going. Soldiers going to Pigeon Falls but had in places. Practically impassable north of Pigeon Falls.

No. 12—Open south state line to Hustler. Gravel sections rough. Travel difficult north of Hustler. Closed remainder.

No. 13—Fair condition Beloit to Friendship. Difficult Friendship to Nekeosha. Pavement to Spencer.

No. 14—Impassable.

No. 15—Open entire distance to light traffic.

No. 16—In poor condition but open to travel from Manitowish to Wittenberg. Practically impassable west of Wittenberg.

No. 17—Only paved sections in condition for travel. Gravel sections in poor condition.

No. 18—Bad condition. Traffic getting through with difficulty in eastern sections.

No. 19—Open Milwaukee to Mt. Ida. Impassable Mt. Ida to Patrol Grove. Travel going south at Fenimore, through Lancaster, Patrol Grove and Prairie du Chien.

No. 20—Open entire distance for light traffic.

No. 21—Impassable.

No. 22—Closed to through traffic.

No. 23—Open Watertown to Hustler. Closed Hustler to Tomah. Four mile detour near Hustler. Trouble in wet weather. Open Tomah to La Crosse. Follow Co. Trunk B West Salem to La Crosse.

No. 24—Open state line to Manitowish. Poor condition Fond du Lac east. Light traffic only on gravel sections.

No. 25—Open state line to Prairie du Chien to Genoa. Good condition from Genoa to Durand.

No. 26—Open Milwaukee to La Crosse. Follow County Trunk I Coon Valley to S. H. 33 to La Crosse.

No. 27—Open Delavan to Kenosha.

No. 28—Open as far north as Abrams.

No. 29—Mostly impassable.

No. 30—Only paved sections in condition for travel.

RESERVE OFFICERS TO ENTERTAIN PLUMMER

H. L. "Pep" Plummer, National executive committee member of the American Legion for Wisconsin, and a member of the Reserve Officers corps, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at an officers mess and monthly meeting of the Green Bay chapter of the Reserve Officers association at 7:15 Wednesday evening at the Elks Hotel, Green Bay. The meeting is for members of the Green Bay chapter, ex-officers and invited guests and a special invitation has been issued to the Fox River Valley chapter of the association, composed of Appleton, Neenah, Menasha and New London reserve officers.

The invitation was extended to Lieut. P. O. Keicher, secretary of the Valley group, by Lieut. Henry Marx, secretary of the Green Bay organization. Lieut. Keicher is making individual invitations to the Valley members Friday and Saturday.

It is expected that many local men will attend the meeting at which several important reserve officer matters will be discussed including final arrangements for a Military Ball which will be held late in April or early in May. The men have been requested to come in uniform if they have one.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for catnip made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in the system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 50c and 60c adv.

POOR APPLICATIONS CONTINUE UNABATED

Despite spring-like weather of the past three weeks, applications for poor aid continue unabated, according to E. G. Schueler, city poor commissioner. Although the weather has been fine, construction work has not yet started and many men still are out of work. Contractors probably will not begin active operations until after Easter and no relief from the present situation is expected until that time.

NO SCALES CONDEMNED BY SEALER IN MARCH

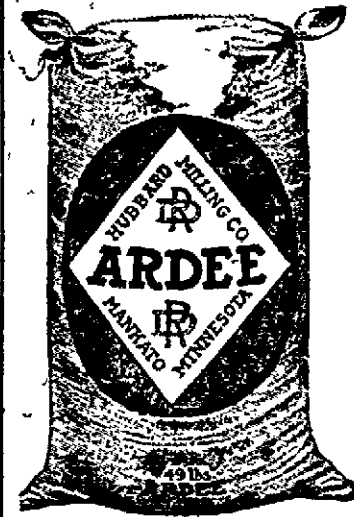

Of 41 appliances and scales tested in March, none were condemned and only nine were adjusted, according to the monthly report of Joseph A. Hodgins, city sealer of weights and measures. Mr. Hodgins conducted 211 tryouts and found only 35 incorrect. One 50 pound carton of butter was rejected as being short weight and 20 gas pumps were retested.

CHINESE WOMEN SPURN ADVANCES OF MODERN STYLE

Nationalist Movement Will Frustrate Foreign Attempt to Inflict "Atrocity"

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—Speaking of Chinese atrocities, if any, the nationalist movement may be depended upon to frustrate a foreign attempt to inflict one of the worst possible atrocities on China.

This proposed atrocity would have put occidental dress on Chinese women.
Such a "civilizing" process has been enthusiastically favored and promoted by Parisian and American dressmakers for many years.

But the movement has never made any headway and now that the nationalist sentiment seems to have gripped China it will have less chance than ever.

REAL KNOCKOUTS
The fact is, of course, that Chinese girls look by far their best in their own native clothes. Some of them, in their cute little pants and blouses, are absolutely knockouts.

But when you get them in modern dresses they look like bad dreams.

As long as the Chinese women continue to be themselves, China will continue to hold her position as one of the romance areas of the world.

Charles K. Moser, head of the Far Eastern Division of the Department of Commerce, who spent years as an American consul in China, doesn't see where there will be any change to western dress in China for the next 300 years, despite the desperate attempts to go-getting business men to open up that market of some 200,000-000 women for the cloak and suit business.

"In the treaty ports, some Chinese women wear foreign dress to foreign parties," he says, "but most of them keep to Chinese costumes."

"At home, Chinese women dress in Chinese fashions."

"The better class of Chinese women wear trousers, but they also wear a loose gown over them. Everyone wears trousers in China and both sexes also wear gowns."

There is, however, a market for cosmetics and foreign footwear, according to Moser. French and American cosmetics are sold in both Chinese and foreign shops.

But although the appeal of foreign brands is finding a wider and wider field, cosmetics are no innovation for the Chinese woman. She has always used rouge, nail polish and pomade.
She used vegetable oils on hair and face long before we did.

Foreign shoes are becoming more acceptable as the old habit of binding feminine feet dies out.

Million Spent Annually For Radio Telegrams

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

Of all the organizations that have succeeded in "cleaning up" financially from radio broadcasting, the largest are the two large telegraph companies in these United States.

Ordinarily it requires some outlay in the form of radio advertising or direct broadcasting to bring in the shekels to the institution seeking popular favor.

But here is a case in which no investment of this kind has been made,
in which nothing has been done to win the favor of the radio listening public.

Yet an income well over a million a year has been handed to these telegraph companies!

It comes from the thousands of tel-

PHONE COMPANIES BENEFIT

So great has this traffic become,

that the telegraph companies are now

leading woodchuckers for handling applause messages.

The telephone companies, too, have profited immensely from the local calls that have been keeping the lines to the stations hot with congratulatory and request conversations. Understandings that are dispatched to the

80 PER CENT OF CARS

STOLEN ARE RECOVERED

At least 80 per cent of the automobiles stolen throughout the country usually are recovered, it is estimated by George T. Prim, chief of police.

Many of the machines are badly damaged or practically ruined when returned to their owners, some are none

the worse for wear, and a few never are found. Automobile thieves know how to change the entire appearance of a car, from the color of the body to the motor number, making it almost impossible for the owner to recognize his machine.

Lists of recovered automobiles are received at the end of every month

by the police department from the Automobile Protective and Informabureau. The list for March, received this week, shows that approximately 400 stolen cars were returned to their owners last month.

When a machine is stolen, its description is sent to police departments

throughout the country on so-called

"alarm cards." Each month the list containing the "alarm cards" is check-ed over and those containing descriptions of recovered machines are thrown out.

le Sam has been getting his share of this great new business in the form of mail sacks full of letters daily for every station on the map.

The extent to which this applause business has grown may be discerned from the experiences of one of the telegraph companies.

This company's radio applause business has grown to such vast proportions that it has found it necessary on many occasions to install special telegraph loops and operators for handling such messages at the studio itself.

No official estimate has been made as to the extent of the income from this source, but simple computation shows this to reach well past the million mark.

CONTEST BRINGS REWARDS

This is based on evidence of income from certain long nights, for which figures are available.

There is the time when station

KFNP at Shenandoah, Iowa, held a popular contest requiring votes by wire from the fans. This contest brought in more than 225,000 tel-egramms from all parts of the United States, Mexico, and Cuba. The revenue from an opera broadcast recently to one telegraph company alone was $124,235.

This is the highest return so far obtained from one station's applause telegram for one week. But the first grand opera broadcast recently brought in more than 75,000 worth of telegrams in one night, and the wetter vote and Durrow debate staged

by WJAZ in Chicago cost the fans

$25,500 for one night's applause tel-egramms.

At the same time it must be remembered, wires were shooting out to every station in the country, as the regular applause and request business handled nightly by the telegraph companies.

An official of one of these companies says the average fan message costs

5 cents. Allow only ten messages a night, on an average, to each of the 700-odd stations in the country and we have an income of more than $3,500 a night as regular business. There's a revenue of more than a million and a quarter a year.

A nice velvet income, presented to the telegraph companies on golden radio waves!

Claflin Suggests Waters Where Wily Trout Abound

BY B. A. CLAFLIN

I have had so many requests lately for directions as to trout waters that I believe my readers will appreciate a few tips right now. As a rule the older and more experienced anglers know just where they are going on May 1. They follow the game year after year and naturally keep in touch with the streams that will produce results for them on the opening day.

And yet they are not averse to asking for and availing themselves of the other man's knowledge. Among these requests come to me from all over the middle states and even further. I have just replied to a man in the New Mexico, giving him directions to a locality where he is to spend June trout fishing. I referred this man to a locality last season where, as he wrote me later, he enjoyed the finest of bass and musky fishing.

At the opening of the trout season, however, it is well for the angler to know which are the early streams, later on they may all be fished with some certainty of success, depending,
of course, on the ability of the angler,
but not many are really good at the beginning of the season.

As May 1 approaches we all have that urge which can only be appeased by the hardships attendant upon an early trip to some stream. After that trip has been made we are, as a rule, "fed up" for awhile and willing to wait for the nice weather which begins about June 1st. Aside from appeasing our desire to again wield the rod, there is not so much pleasure in trout fishing when the weather is still raw and cold, and our muscles are soft from a long winter's inactivity.

I have in mind some streams where the angler, who is willing to work and undergo hardships, can be assured some good fishing. Among them are Rocky Mt., west of Hazel-hurst, a few miles; Bearsden Creek, on route 10 south of Hazelhurst; the Little Pine, on route 63 between Rhinelander and Tomahawk; the Prairie River, between Parrish and Dudley; and the east and west branches of the Presque Isle. I have at different times fished these streams with good success, especially early in the season.

While it is possible to take trout from these waters with artificial flies at this time of the year, generally speaking worms, grubs or club tails are far better for the first three weeks after May 1. If flies are to be used, however, I would suggest the following patterns: Willow, Black Gnat, Stone, March Brown, Alder, and possibly the May Fly.

FAVOR INCREASING EDUCATION CREDITS FOR ALL TEACHERS

Recommendations for College Training Outlined by Superintendents

Recommendations for teacher's training in Wisconsin colleges were made at the meeting of city superintendents of schools in the state with John Callahan, state superintendent,
Friday at Madison. The recommendations were made by a research committee appointed at the annual fall meeting of the Wisconsin Teachers association which reported at the Friday meeting. Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools here, a member of the committee, attended the meeting.

The eight recommendations were:
To require a minimum of 15 professional or education credits for the granting of first license teachers whereas only eight were required formerly, to require by July 1, 1929 that a candidate for a first license shall have had not less than a three se-

CHILD LABOR

The way the child labor bill proposed by the Missouri Women's Legislative committee was ridiculed to defeat at the hands of the Missouri senate, reflects little credit on that august body of "show me" legislators. That men, sent to the legislature to transact the public business, could take such a course with such serious legislation leads one to wonder whether our republican form of government does not fail, inasmuch as it enables thoughtless voters to send nit-wits to legislative halls.

And let us examine this bill, proposed by the women of the state of Missouri and see if it is so funny as to deserve to be laughed out of existence. Here are the features at which it was aimed:

1. In Missouri children under 14 may work in factories outside of school hours. In 36 states this is illegal.
2. In Missouri children over 10 may work in any capacity for two hours after 7 p. m. In 41 states this is illegal.
3. In Missouri a child of 14 may receive a permit to work without meeting any educational requirement. In 41 states there is some educational standard and 35 require the completion of at least the fourth grade.
4. In Missouri a child of 14 may receive a permit to work without showing documentary proof of age. In 32 states this is required.
5. In Missouri a child of 14 may receive a permit to work without a statement from the employer as to nature of work to be done. In 20 states this is required.

There are several other points that might be cited in this connection, but we have listed the most important ones and we fail to see how Missouri can scan this list and not feel ashamed at the fate of the bill that would have corrected these conditions.

OUR LOST CHILDREN

In an editorial in the April issue of "Children, The Magazine for Parents," Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, says, "Every day some of us lose our children beyond recall. We had the opportunity to be their friend and guide and refuge and first aid in every time of trouble, but we didn't see it as an opportunity. We tied up the cut finger with a warning to let broken glass alone; we salvaged the burn with reproof as well as an ointment, but have we been as quick to salve hurt feelings, or tie up mission meanings with anything in life that would make them clear? Having put away childish things, have we forgotten how much they meant to us in childhood days, while we pursue other objects which may some day seem as worthless?"

"It is not enough to be parents: we must be friends, too. It is at least as important for us to establish friendly relations with our children as it is for our country to maintain friendly relations with any foreign power. Friendship must be based on understanding and a sufficient sense of equality so that each may speak his mind frankly, sure that his opinions will be received with a certain amount of respect if not of acquiescence. When the parent is interested and concerned in whatever the child regards seriously, there is ground for hope that the child may be patient with what doubtless seem to him strange adult aberrations."

Little can be added to such a concise arraignment of a present day evil—lack of understanding between parents and children—except to stress the tragedy of the situation. It is really time that parents and children found each other. With that as an aim, much can be done. All movements begin with a foundation. If every parent will resolve to create a new atmosphere in his relation with his children, a beneficial change can be effected.

TRAVELERS' AID

The work accomplished by the various Travelers' Aid societies throughout the United States is worthy of more than passing notice. More than 1,300,000 persons received help last year in traveling from one place to another in the United States, according to the annual report submitted at the meeting of the directors of the National Association of Travelers' Aid societies and it has cost $1,000,000 to accomplish this work.

Practically every human problem imaginable was included in the cases presented to the associations. There were 49,380 children traveling alone; 1,252 marriages that had to be witnessed; 4,538 runaways were aided; 30,830 travelers, mostly immigrants, had trouble with the language; and 4,987 lost their tickets or money and needed assistance. Those who applied to the various bureaus received valuable advice and information, medical assistance, legal assistance, directions in regard to securing transportation as well as temporary and permanent lodgings, help in making connections with relatives, etc., etc. in fact, the limit to the activities of the societies has not yet been found.

This year the national association celebrates its tenth anniversary. The last ten years have seen a large growth in this work. Volunteers have given their time and money to the activity because it serves a vital need.

So efficiently has the work been carried on during the last ten years that the travelers' aid units and the national association have received praise from police officials throughout the nation. The work the societies do is something the police would find great difficulty in doing and it is surely a work that requires doing.

"BETTER RETURN HOME"

American missionaries, by remaining at their China posts in defiance of the wishes of the government of the United States, can complicate the present grave situation. It is not heroic to stay in the face of reason, and jeopardize the peace of the world. Bishop L. J. Barney, head of the Shanghai district of the Methodist missionary organization, has the right slant on the situation when, in a cable to United States headquarters he says bluntly that the missionaries "had better return home."

This is not a time for discussing the good or the harm that the missionaries have accomplished in China. It is a time for sober, quick action. The United States does not wish to become embroiled in this trouble any more than is necessary. Yet every American who stays at a danger point in China is one more focal point which may throw this country into a really active offensive against China.

There may have been a time when our missionaries were welcome in China. The fact remains that at present they are persons non grata and ought to take the hint to get out while the opportunity offers itself.

UNITED STATES AUTOS

More than 22,000,000 motor vehicles were registered in the United States in 1926, according to reports received from state registration agencies by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture. This means that one person out of every five men, women and children in this country theoretically owns an automobile. Of the total, 19,237,171 were passenger automobiles and 2,764,222 were motor trucks and road tractors. Some idea of the magnitude of the registration business itself may be gained from the total receipts from the licenses for these cars, a total of $288,382,332 in 1926, as compared with $260,619,421 in 1925. It is easy to see that automobile experts are probably correct when they say that the United States is nowhere near the saturation point for automobiles as yet.

OLD MASTERS

When the hounds of spring are on winter's traces. The mother of months in meadow or plain. With the shadows and windy places. With the leaves and the apple of rain. And the brown bright nightingale armoured. Is held asunder for Ithys. For the Thracian ships and the foreign faes. The tongueless vixen, and all the pain.

Come with bows bent and with emptying of quivers. Maiden most perfect, lady of light. With a noise of winds and many rivers. With a clamor of waters, and with might: Bind on thy sandals, oh thou must fly. Over the splendor and speed of thy feet. For the faint east quickens, the wan west shivers. Round the feet of the day and the feet of the night.

—Alfred Charles Swinburne: Chorus from "Atalanta in Calydon."

An advertisement for a lecturer says he "speaks straight from the shoulder." Too bad some of these talks can't originate a little higher up.

ASSURANCE AND IMMUNITY

Exposure to cold and wet has no demonstrable influence upon an individual's immunity to respiratory infections. This is the first of four scientific conclusions we draw from our present knowledge of immunity. We discuss the influence of anxiety on immunity the other day. Now let's talk about something cheerful, the influence of assurance upon immunity. But first it is necessary to remind the reader that we have little scientific evidence that anxiety, worry or fear lowers an individual's immunity, although that is the only explanation we can conceive for the difference in the effect of voluntary fasting and starvation or voluntary exposure to cold and deprivation. I know of no experimental evidence which indicates that anxiety, fear or worry lowers immunity.

By the same token, we have no scientific evidence that the absence of anxiety, fear or worry, that is good cheer, assurance, nonchalance, in any degree increases immunity. We just think such a frame of mind indirectly favors the development of the highest degree of immunity can attain.

Remember, please that so far as our present knowledge of immunity goes, we have no reason to believe that once an individual has attained a given degree of immunity, any temporary unhygienic condition or environment can reduce his immunity seriously. But we have very sound reasons to know that the development of immunity, say against the respiratory infections, may be seriously retarded or prevented by certain unhygienic influences.

I say we just think that the assurance which comes from understanding indirectly favors the attainment of good immunity. By that I mean something like this: The child whose parents are cold and damp weather is kept confined indoors and clothed with excessive clothing, thus fails to receive the benefit of sunlight (ultraviolet rays) and accordingly fails to develop the degree of immunity a child should have. On the other hand the child of parents who know that neither the cold nor wet can do any harm as long as the child enjoys going out in it, gets a fair amount of ultraviolet energy and enjoys the fullest degree of immunity against the cold.

Children taking the sunbath cure for tuberculosis enjoy playing in the snow in midwinter when the sun shines, although they wear only breeches and shoes. These fortunate patients universally develop a high degree of immunity against the common respiratory infections.

Some people who have a half hearted belief in the desirability of fresh air all the time, is better to keep the bedroom window closed when the air is very damp. With understanding one appreciates the greater purity of damp night air and consequently keeps the window open wide on such nights. The assurance that comes from understanding and knowledge enables the members of the household or office staff to agree on a wholesome indoor temperature—which should not exceed 68 degrees—and such an atmosphere may still retain the maximum of this drug which is safe to use as an artificial sweetener. But the policy your daughter pursues is certainly bad for the baby's health and development: I should be glad to send your daughter, if she wishes, advice about the feeding of the baby. Very often these babies that "can't take" this and that alleged food thrive on a properly modified milk diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

My Feeding the Cow Green Excelsior
My daughter is feeding her 9 months old baby one-half grain of excelsior daily in a bottle of water. Is this safe? The baby will not take water unless it is sweetened and cannot take sugar without getting diarrhea. Is this excelsior harmful to the baby?
Answer—I cannot say the half grain of excelsior is particularly harmful, though it exceeds the daily maximum of this drug which is safe to use as an artificial sweetener. But the policy your daughter pursues is certainly bad for the baby's health and development: I should be glad to send your daughter, if she wishes, advice about the feeding of the baby. Very often these babies that "can't take" this and that alleged food thrive on a properly modified milk diet.

Sulphur
Powdered sulphur helps me keep my bowels regular. Would it be injurious to continue indefinitely taking a teaspoonful of it every day? (Mrs. R. J.)
Answer—Sulphur is a comparatively mild physic. I know of no physical less than sulphur for habitual use, but will cultivate such a habit?

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Monday, April 14, 1902
Anton Basch and Herman Duhz, who were employed on the new electric power house, were injured the previous Saturday afternoon when a scaffold fell. Both fell a distance of 16 feet. Mr. Duhz had his ankle sprained and Mr. Basch was injured internally and about the head.

While returning to his home on E. College-ave. late the previous Saturday night, Bertin Ramsay, president of the Wisconsin Malt and Grain Co., was robbed of $25 by two men.

The Kamps and Sacksteder Drug Co., filed articles of incorporation with the State of Wisconsin at Madison Saturday. The capital stock was $30,000, and the incorporators were J. H. Kamps, Edward Sacksteder, Charles J. Sacksteder and Gerhard T. Moeskes.

Marriage licenses were issued to B. G. Pemberton of Shiocton and Marjorie E. Beck of Seymour; August Morack of Liberty and Corn Matthews of Ellington.

Charles Rechner was surprised by about 50 friends in honor of his birthday anniversary.

TEN YEARS AGO
Monday, April 9, 1917
Austria formally broke relations with the United States that day. The Austrian charge Zwickel called at the state department and asked for his passport.

The United States was to work in full harmony with the allies, it was officially stated at the navy department that day.

Between 8,000 and 10,000 persons were expected to take part in the gigantic parade and patriotic meeting that afternoon. The parade was to start on E. College-ave. and was to move west, the various units falling in line at intersecting corners.

G. W. Jones left that morning for Ford City, Ark., where he was to spend a few weeks on business.

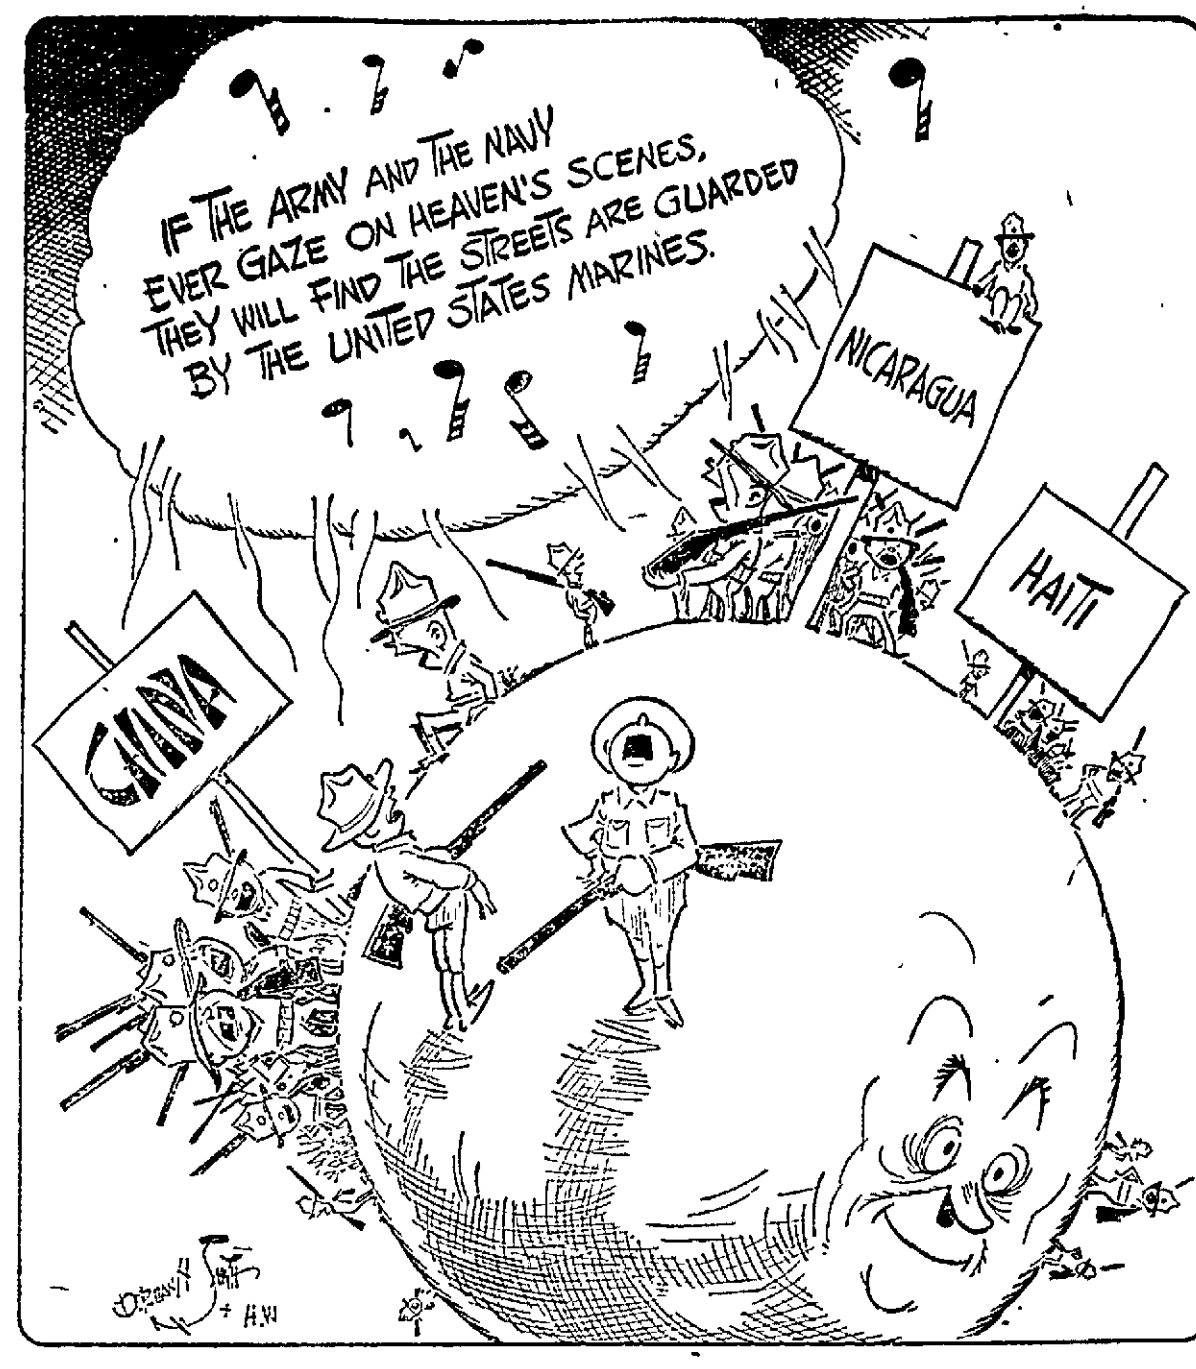

There was at that time 211 Appleton men in active military service including commissioned officers, an article in the paper states. Company G had about 155 Appleton men on its role; the mounted orderly section had 18 and the hospital corps had 22 men. Five commissioned officers, exclusive of those attached to Company G were living in Appleton, making a total of 211 in all.

Miss Josephine Johnson entertained 15 friends at a dinner party at her home on Foster-st. the previous evening.

The marriage of Miss Irma M. Sinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sinner, 955-Eighth-st., and Walter J. Driscoll, assistant highway commissioner, took place at 8 o'clock that morning at St. Mary church. The couple was attended by Willis Nelson and Miss Vivian Morrow.

Subscribers of a newspaper in a small Iowa town got together the other day and decided to give the editor a trip to California. The funny part is that they're providing for a return trip.

Looks Like They Might Be Right, After All

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

A DELIGHTFUL FRAUD

A friend asked me, in connection with a recently published biography of Elbert Hubbard, what I thought of the "Sage of East Aurora." Without thinking and without really knowing so very much about him, I answered, "I think he is a delightful fraud."

After thinking it over, it still seems to me that that is about as good an answer as can be given, very probably millions of people will disagree with it. There are many people who regard the "Little Journeys" with something like awe, to whom Elbert Hubbard is a kind of latterday lay saint. And not only people who look at his personality from a distance. His secretary, James W. Beckman, recently contributed a series of articles to a magazine in which he shows plainly that he worships Hubbard in spite of the fact that he came into daily contact with him. This is unusual. It does not often happen that a man is a hero to his secretary. Even Anatole France could not stand that test.

But Beckman himself illustrates what I mean by a "delightful fraud." Every once in a while we hear some speaker quote Emerson to the effect that "if a man but make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods the world will make a beaten path to his door." Beckman reveals the fact that not only did Emerson never say it but Hubbard deliberately started the legend that he said it and got himself believed by millions. The idea came to his quick and clever mind and he cast about the best method to make it universally current and accepted as truth. He said to himself, "When you want to say something and don't want to take the responsibility for it yourself, blame it on a dead man; he can't deny it." So he deliberately attributed this mousetrap saying to Emerson.

Even that much could be forgiven him, but his secretary quotes him to the following effect: "One thing, trivial, of course, and not worth mentioning—and that is why I wrote it down—is that the mouse trap guff isn't true!"

That illustrates exactly the feeling I have always had about Elbert Hubbard without being in any sense exhaustively informed about him. He is a delightful fraud. What could be more delightful than pulling the public's leg by hanging one of his own ideas on Emerson? It is even delightful that he was not himself taken in by his own "guff" that he fed to the dear public by the shovelful. But to regard him as a great latterday prophet or sage, as is commonly done, seems to me the height of the ridiculous.

Elbert Hubbard was one of the shrewdest business men of his time. He knew that the public likes to be fooled with hokum and so he gave it to them in wholesale quantities. He made Barnum's famous dictum about suckers his motto and put it into practice.

He discovered, for instance, that long hair and a flowing beard were good business assets for him. His hero-worshiping secretary admits this frankly. They gave him physical appearance of a "sage." So he deliberately made himself picturesque—for advertising purposes. And that he was right the millions of his admirers prove. But I for one cannot conceive of a man of genuine mental and spiritual dignity doing such a thing. There is no harm in it, is even rather delightful—a delightful fraud, in short—but it is not to be mistaken for the attitude of a real prophet.

His most famous piece of writing, "A Message to Garcia," illustrates the same point. Speaking of Lieutenant Rowan, who carried the message in the Spanish-American war, Hubbard says, "By the Eternal There is a man whose form should be cast in deathless bronze and a statue placed in every college of the land!" And then he devotes most of his paper to other things than the hero, even naming it for Garcia, a mere passive actor in the episode. He didn't really care a hang about Lieut. Rowan. Lieut. Emerson, Rowan was merely a convenient peg to hang an idea on. For nearly 30 years everybody knew about Garcia, who had nothing to do with the adventure, and not until a year or two ago did congress vote to give Rowan a medal, reflecting where Hubbard had placed the emphasis. All in all a delightful fraud.

The Question Box

Q. What is the meaning of the famous painting "The Huguenot"?
W. S.

A. Briefly, the explanation of the painting called "The Huguenot" is as follows: By order of the Duc de Guise, issued before St. Bartholomew's Day "all good Catholics" were enjoined to wear a white scarf as a distinguishing badge. The young woman pleads with her lover as she strives to fasten the symbolic white scarf. The lover will die in the morning. As one writer suggests, the picture is reminiscent of the famous line "I could not love thee, dear, so much, loved I not honour more."

Q. Have all crystals, when unmoiled, a definite number of faces?
V. M.

A. Every crystal has a definite molecular structure and its outward form is bounded by a number of faces resulting from the regular arrangement of the particles of the substance which is undergoing solidification. Although the faces often develop unequally, the angles between them remain constant.

Q. Did Phil L. Kappa always admit women?
L. M.

A. This was obviously not intended by the founders but fidelity to the test of scholarship required it. Women were first admitted by the Alpha of Vermont in 1875.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Admitting a "flop" does not come easy to the show folk of Broadway.

The actors of lesser importance are particularly heavy with their gestures and have become almost historic for their boastings in the face of failure. It has become the earmark of the "ham" and "barn-stormer" that she will boast of achievements, but invariably they were somewhere else.

While these strutting have become the basis for much comic travesty, their is a side that isn't so funny. This is presented by those who left Broadway to "knock 'em dead" elsewhere and who, over-optimistically, cannot bear to return in the face of failure.

Out of Hollywood come many reports of this nature. Shortly after a number of chorines have been nabbed for the films many an attractive Broadway beauty set forth for the cinema capital. For a time there was a rush almost parallel to that of Weepah. Desertions of the chorus for Hollywood trials were invariably prefaced by tales of gold-laden contracts just ahead, later not so sunny. This is presented by those who left Broadway to "knock 'em dead" elsewhere and who, over-optimistically, cannot bear to return in the face of failure.

But they didn't click. They went to Hollywood and they haven't the courage to come back and admit they flopped.

For look at Broadway any way you wish, they are as fearful of general opinion there as on Main Street—and maybe more so.

No one knows this better than the veteran "first nighters" of the theaters. There are many stars, whose names loom so large, that one would think them past fear, who quake and tremble more than the newest arrival when facing a first night audience.

Ethel Barrymore is said to inevitably be at her worst at opening performances. Grace George fears the first night glares. Laurette Taylor and Alice Brady—but one could go on through the whole list of casts in search for first night nervousness. The basis is that fear of what people will think of the performance and the show or the forgetting of lines. No high school production in Sheboygan scores on more timorously than a first night performance with the nation's most famous stars.

Newcomers making their first appearance have an elaborate schedule of rites that remind one of the magic, the amulets, charms and what not of the ancients. The introduction of a particularly new number is marked by many similar hokum-pieces.

In the case of the leading Broadway successes of the season critics pointed approvingly to the realism contained in a bit of business wherein a "hooper," going into a cabaret for a number crossed himself before making an entrance. This is not at all an uncommon practice. Good-luck charms of all sorts are used and there are as many superstitions as there are actors to create them. Trifling things like a sagging curtain, or an electric light blinking, a piece of properties out of place or a makeup box mislaid are taken as serious omens for the success of the production and the actor.

A misstep on the way to theater is construed as unfavorable and the actor watches himself carefully against mishaps on the stage.

"The right to a vacation" of fifteen working-days will be granted after eleven months' continuous service in the same establishment to employees of enterprises throughout Brazil in commercial, industrial, and banking enterprises, transportation and private charitable institutions, and in journalistic enterprises. A vacation of fifteen working-days will be granted to employees without subtraction of days away from employment for sickness or other unavoidable causes. Pay for the vacation time will be at the rate of fifteen working-days to those receiving day wages or doing piecework, while salaried employees will receive half a month's pay. Employees must be informed in writing a week in advance of the time allotted to them for this vacation, which may be granted in part or whole. The National Council of Labor is charged with the supervision of the execution of the present regulations. A fine of 50 to 2000 milreis is the penalty for the infringement of this law.

Ruegg Sees Small Chance For Cut In Rubber Prices

(This is another of a series of articles written by the Rev. Samuel G. Ruegg, formerly of Menasha and Clintonville, who has been traveling around the world. Another article will appear in an early issue of the Post-Crescent.)

Jungoon, Burma—Rubber and religion are the dominating themes in the jungle peninsula; rubber around Singapore and religion about Jungoon, Burma. These two ought to go together always. They should even mix which they do not always do. Rubber concerns practically every reader particularly if he drives a car and religiously insures his driving, reasonable rubber prices and insure satisfaction from waste of money and morals. Religion needs more rubber too, to take off its crudeness, its dogmatic bumps its ecclesiastical jolts and with the air of humor in the "tyre" as the English call it, life's progress will be smoothed and strains reduced. That is why it is rather of striking interest to visit Singapore on the "tyre" of the lantern" with Burma the land of mystery and faroffness.

We are told out here that now one out of every six Americans owns a car and that means paying a high tribute to King Rubber or to the British wheeler who you want to put it. On November 1, 1922, the government which controls things on this peninsula, decreed to hold down the production of rubber to insure better prices and these fine Britishers have a fine way of paying of their debts by making us pay high prices for the raw material for their control 80 per cent of the world's output and we take 70 per cent if we are rightly informed. All rubber consumed in the world. By interesting directions with the Dutch in Java which have 1,250,000 acres, the British also have a say in their output. The British people grow 2,961,000 acres of rubber trees or a total of 4,296,000 acres in the world. Their profits have not been bad. There is no enormous investment in a rubber plantation. 50 plantations with 25.5 pounds sterling profit per acre in one year had 2,155,582 pounds profit or 40 per cent on the capital. It is not always that high. The tire user and tire seller might also sit and take notice that the demand for 1927 in the world is 555,000 tons and the only possible production is 500,000 tons and that the market is not going to lower and that prices may even rise a little. On Feb. 12 when we were in Penang rubber in crude form was quoted at 37½ cents in New York or 1 shilling 6½ pence in London.

We took a drive of 135 miles through the coconut and rubber plantations around Singapore. Rubber is raised in a very limited area of a stretch of about 30 miles on the Straits Settlement. It has to be raised in the torrid zone from ten degrees north of the equator to ten degrees south of it. The climate has to be hot and there must be much moisture. The Singapore region has about 70 inches a year and it sometimes goes to 120 inches although an intermittent dry season does not interfere with it. We noticed holes near the trees to catch the water and even to hold it. They plant the trees in rows about 200 to the acre of which there is always a certain percentage that die or are unprofitable, often running to 25 per cent. The trees are not interplanted so that makes an uneven production. The real fact of the case is that the whole rubber business is new. They tell us that they do not know much about it. The tree once grew wild in fact in 1903 the British produced only 174 tons or 100 per cent of the world's production and practically all of this came from uncultivated trees. In 1913 there were only small wild sections 6.8 per cent of the rubber output coming from the wild areas.

Matters are then in the experimental stage because the demand of rubber came so sudden and Ford and all the other motor manufacturers followed up their business with an unparalleled frenzy that the rubber planters did not know how to keep up with it. It planted well and sought to meet that demand. It takes from five to six years to get a tree to bring forth the sap and they do not know how long they will live and find that tapping it in the wrong way reduces the age and that certain mismanagement in other ways shortens the life of the tree. The study is now at the government is giving considerable attention to this matter in its scientific researches. When rubber dropped to 11½ and 12 cents in June and July, 1921, the government passed the Stevenson restriction act and that immediately doubled the price in rubber showing that the law makers are anxious to support an industry which exported $155,000,000 worth in 1923. The shortage will be felt way up into 1930 so we are told. British Malaya is producing at present 55 per cent Sumatra 27 per cent, Java 2½ per cent, Borneo 2½ per cent, French Indo China 2 per cent and Burma 1½ per cent.

About 1,500,000 acres of rubber trees in Straits Settlement are owned by the Chinese. We found them in some ways a very efficient people. In fact there has been a distinct movement of Chinese into other parts away from their native land for the last fifteen years. The business men of China always like to go where there is a British rule for that means a high sense of integrity and protection of property, mutual confidence and better business. In fact many of the Chinese for example moved into the international concession in Shanghai in the last three years just to get this very element in the business life which is at a discount everywhere in China where factions and individuals are seeking their own profit everywhere. In these rubber plantations they have not been so over successful as they have not always been ready to take the newest information on dealing with rubber trees yet their palaces and homes along the seashore indicate a prosperity that would hardly be thought of. All the value raised six and seven feet from the ground on stone or cement pillars to avoid the insects, the dampness and the crabs, toads and reptiles are models of beauty set out in the dreamiest fairyland you can imagine with wavy palms, with the most graceful breezes with the lapping of the ocean waters and with the most exquisite skies of sparkling diamonds, the North

The tapping system of the trees has undergone considerable change but the tappers are not yet agreed which is the best way to tap. The trees are not large nor would we call them handsome. They are topped with a tool like a chisel, sort of a gouge or furrier's knife. When you look at them from a distance they appear like the tapping of maple trees, save that there is no sap but a little porcelain dipper hung near the galvanized spot which is driven lightly into the bark. You also notice that the juice which they call "latex" is white and it follows the bark that has been slit off and is visible 100 feet away like a little white band. The "v" system used on mature trees extending half way around the tree. The trees cannot be tapped in the same place again for six years and sometimes twelve depending on the size of the tree. Mother trees are selected according to their production and used to propagate new trees. The record tree is found in Ceylon where rubber is raised on a small scale. Sir Henry Wickham father of plantation rubber or "para" rubber had a tree that gave 55 pounds of dry rubber in 1909. It has never been exceeded. The same tree gave 68 pounds in 1913. The latex comes in small drops and is collected in pails by men and often by girls. We found it tasted a trifle sweet and had the taste you get chewing a rubber band.

When the pails are brought to the central gathering plant, there you find a rather large enclosure where it is strained into jars. Then acetic acid is put on it to hasten the coagulation and later the coagulum is cut up in sheets in crepe form. Then it is hung on huge frames to dry. "Para" crepe is smoked rubber which some of the trade demands. In this crude form it is loaded right onto steamers and shipped to New York where of course it has to go through various processes before it reaches the tire consumer and which naturally brings the prices up to a high point. There is a large toll of life connected with the rubber industry. We traveled through many jungle sections sometimes called the mangrove jungles. These are imperial forests with an exceedingly heavy undergrowth, there are dense swamps thick with decaying forest, the humidity giving off stenches that are indescribable. The forests are so dense that no man or beast can penetrate them, some plants are swollen with venom, there are sickly petals crawling things of every description, loathsome land crabs and many devious passages through which the coast seems or creeps in like a thief into a slough of despond. Here malaria is bred. Few white men stand up under it as evergreens in the plantations. Monkeys abound and we fed them by the dozen. Often half of the laborers on the plantation are down with malaria and many die. Thus while we are riding with comfort at home going forty miles an hour it may be well to remind ourselves that the thousand jolts from which we are relieved are all sprinkled with the blood of natives who brave the jungle sections that many of the rubber planters and give their lives by the hundred every year.

From rubber we turn to religion and go to Rangoon a few hundred miles north of Singapore the entrance to the wonderland of Burma made famous by the Kipling song "On the Road to Mandalay" a region where many men leave the ten commandments behind. Singapore seems to be the gateway between East and West where the ships pass each other in the night and day and 2,542 cleared that port alone in 1923. We came up on the old tub "uncultivated" trees. In 1913 there were only small wild sections 6.8 per cent of the rubber output coming from the wild areas.

The very name Rangoon has a certain musical element in it; the balmy atmosphere in the middle of February reaching up to 94 in the sun seemed to have with it that oriental calm that makes men "broody" and meditative. Thousands of worshippers come here every year from many sections of ancient Burma and different parts of the world to bring their votive offerings. Rangoon itself is a disappointment, has come rather modern buildings but the streets are dirty with small shops and notable stenches smells and perfume. The town has not many Burmese but Indians and Chinese abound and do the manual work. The Burmese religion makes the male a man of leisure and the woman the burden bearer and the worker. The man is a drone; he sits under the banana tree and lets it drip into his mouth while the wife does the chores often makes the living and he meditates on the foolishness of the strenuous life as exemplified by the western man. The Burma women is different. No laziness has crept into her bones. She carries heavy burdens on her head which makes her a graceful carriage which most of our western women do not have. Many of our women love leisure too much and they could learn something from their oriental sisters in carriage and carefulness.

The Shwe Dagon pagoda is a Buddhist shrine of worship. It is at one end of the city on a raised portion of ground which it is said was raised by man but there are no hills in this region. There may have been a rise of man for there are no hills in this region but in 358 B. C. when the pagoda was started the earth was raised and the pagoda erected to a height of 27 feet. The Buddhists have never resorted to stone in their places of worship as Romans and Greeks. They have used bricks a good deal like the early Egyptians in Thebes and Memphis ruins of which are still pointed out.

The Shwe Dagon is a solid piece of mosaic and its present form was completed in 1564 and the base or

KAUKAUNA GIRL IS HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Jean Mitchel, 7 Years Old, Taken to Hospital With Fractured Skull

Jean, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Mitchell, Kaukauna, is in a serious condition at St. Elizabeth hospital with a fractured skull. She was struck by an automobile when she was knocked to the pavement by a car driven by Peter Siebers of Kaukauna, June Dolven, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Dolven, who was with the little Mitchell girl, also was struck but was only slightly injured. The accident occurred at the corner of Wisconsin-ave and Lawe-st an Kaukauna.

Siebers was driving north on Lawe-st and four little girls were walking east on Wisconsin-ave. When they reached the intersection with Lawe-st they started north on Lawe-st. Siebers saw the girls, but thinking they intended to walk north on Lawe-st he did not stop.

Suddenly the little Mitchell and Dolven girl changed their minds and darted into the road directly in front of the car, witness reported.

feet in circumference with the column now 370 feet high. You approach it from the south side on a long flight of covered stairs. There are one or two other approaches but this is where most of the pilgrims make their start. The stairway is of rough stone and very uncomfortable to walk on for we as infidels, had to take our shoes and stockings off which was not sanitary for tender feet and very uncomfortable for the pilgrims. The stairway is of rough stone and very uncomfortable to walk on for we as infidels, had to take our shoes and stockings off which was not sanitary for tender feet and very uncomfortable for the pilgrims. The stairway is of rough stone and very uncomfortable to walk on for we as infidels, had to take our shoes and stockings off which was not sanitary for tender feet and very uncomfortable for the pilgrims.

Arriving on the top we are in a veritable forest and wilderness of pagodas, a paradise of their shutting out the view across the country. These pagodas are made of lacquer work, of glass, of stone, a few of wood, some of bricks and most of them are rather beaten looking, tawdry and some are crumbling because there is no merit in keeping up any one's pagoda unless it is your own. And the owners most of them are dead and gone. There are monsters half lion and half man, half elephant and half man, there are grotesque figures before each one of them a riot of animals with a thousand pagoda bells dangling in the wind.

The pagoda bells call the god's attention to the desire of the worshiper. Bells with us corral the worshiper with his vagrant and tramp thoughts to bring them into the captivity of the Infinite but here the gods have to be waked and called. Within each pagoda is the figure of Buddha, the shape of a woman sometimes reclining sometimes squatting, now and then erect but always with that quiet face, rather stagnant in appearance, rather insipid in expression yet typical of divine repose and calm.

Originally Buddhism did not have all this falderal about it. It was a religion that stood that life was sad but that sadness could be overcome and the divers desires of the flesh could be thrust out by a great and overmastering spirit of meditation and sacrifice. Priestcraft and extravagant idolatry have been added but the shaft all sided with gold stands for the time faith. All the other excess baggage ought to be wiped off. The column of gold with no corner or cornice with no ornament save the bells on top, presents a more imposing spectacle than the pyramids of Egypt, shows forth a mighty faith, peace and calm in the presence of which man is so small. This faith has more disciplines than any other in the world with no ecclesiastical system and but one message: "The secret of a worldless calm." Rangoon, Burma.

84-Year-Old Man Reference Library Of War Department

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The War Department has a reference library which walks around on two feet.

"Marse John" by Randolph, assistant to the chief clerk in the office of the secretary of war, has been in continuous service for 54 years. He entered in 1873 at the age of 30 and today, at the age of 84, he is the oldest employee at the State, War and Navy building.

Whenever the records don't shed light on some point dating back 40 or 50 years, they call on "Marse John" and find that his memory is holding out as well as his physique. The old gentleman is so young, incidentally, that he smokes cigars.

The principal distinction that has accrued to "Marse John" other than his service record lies in the fact that in 1903 he administered the oath of office to Lieut. Gen. Samuel B. Young, the first army chief of staff after the organization of the present general staff corps, and that he has sworn in every chief of staff since.

Randolph did the honors for Lieut. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, Maj. Gen. Tashler H. Bliss, Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott—the famous Indian fighter — Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood—now gov-

The Big Parade In Appleton

ONCE each year Appleton has a "big parade" all its own. We mean the annual fashion parade to church on Easter Sunday morning. It's then that your clothes are in the limelight more than any other time.

Are you ready for this friendly inspection? You don't need to buy a lot of NEW clothes. Many of last year's garments can be made entirely presentable by a thorough dry cleaning, or by dyeing them in the new Spring colors. We can do this work for you just as we do it for hundreds of others year after year.

But be sure and send them tomorrow — so YOUR clothes are ready before the last minute Easter rush. Phone 259 for our car now.

the capital that inside Lee refused the command of the northern forces.

Soon after that incident, which Randolph treasures so carefully, he enlisted in the Union army at the age of 18 and served with the District of Columbia Volunteers, known as "the National Rifles." His company took a position on Arlington Heights, to meet an expected Confederate attack which didn't materialize. John was a lieutenant before the war ended and in 1865 and 1866 served with the marine corps.

He entered the War Department during Grant's administration, while Maj. Gen. William W. Belknap was secretary of war. Those were great days for the army, he says, with a general in the White House and the War Department as well. Randolph began as a general service clerk. Today, he says, there are at least 15 times as many on the staff as in the old building where he went to work.

CHORUS PLEASES
IN LAST VESPERS
AT M. E. CHURCH

Exceptional solo and ensemble work was shown in the presentation of "The Seven Last Words of Christ" by Dubois, at the last twilight vesper service at the First Methodist church Sunday afternoon. Carl S. McKee, who directed the chorus, was baritone soloist.

George C. Nixon pleased with the tenor solo and Mrs. Carl J. Waterman, soprano, was well received. The soprano soloist of the choir, Mrs. Marion Hutchison MacCreedy, was ill and was not able to take her parts.

One of the outstanding selections was the baritone and tenor duet in the "Second Word" when the thief on the right hand of Christ on the cross asks the saviour to allow him into the kingdom of heaven. The closing prayer, by the chorus, "We Adore Thee, Oh Christ, and Praise Thee," showed excellent ensemble work.

LARGE CROWD AT DANCING PARTY
FOR DE MOLAYS

One hundred-five couples attended the dancing party given by the John P. Rose chapter, Order of DeMolay, Saturday night, in Masonic temple. This was the largest attendance at a DeMolay party this year.

Specialty numbers included several harmonica selections by Ben Rohan and several songs by the Nixon quartet. Chaperones at the party were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Rohan, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Hellig and Mr. and Mrs. Barlow. The Curtis orchestra furnished music.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the party consisted of Robert Shepherd, chairman, Harold Wohler, William Meyer and Henry Heller.

STRANGE DIVORCE TRIAL

Mrs. Edward C. Carrington

Colonel Edward C. Carrington

The divorce of Colonel Edward C. Carrington, wealthy New York lawyer and publisher and campaign manager for late President Roosevelt, has brought thrill-seeking crowds to the Chicago courtroom where it is being tried. Above are the first pictures of the principals, taken in the courtroom as the trial opened. Colonel Carrington, who recently earned his money in the oil business, is in front of their New York apartment, names him as co-respondent, charging Mrs. Carrington visited his apartment without Colonel Carrington's knowledge. Miss Ingeborg Ahman, pretty blond New York business college student, testified that she often had seen Mrs. Carrington enter a flat at 210 E. 45th street, and had seen Campbell Carrington at the same address. Mrs. Carrington has answered her husband's suit, which charges infidelity with a cross suit charging infidelity and cruelty.

STATE PYTHIANS RALLY HERE TO ATTEND PLAY

The Greek drama, "Damon and Pythias" will be the crowning event of the state wide Pythian rally days to be sponsored by the local lodge of Knights of Pythias on April 28 and 29 when Knights from all over Wisconsin will be in the city. The Appleton lodge was host to hundreds of Pythians at a similar rally six years ago.

The play has been written especially for the Appleton production. One of the strongest casts of players ever assembled in the Fox River valley will present the play. Special scenery is being painted and a 16-piece orchestra, consisting of Appleton professional musicians, will furnish music. This is the first time the drama has been attempted on so large a scale in Wisconsin.

Ugly Mugs Of Ring Now In Demand In Movie Circles

BY DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—Cauliflower ears, broken noses and other distorted facial features have become as big an asset in movieland as a "collar and face."

Feminine movie fans are demanding rough and tough heroes these days, thus accounting for the large number of pugilists now parading before cinema cameras. The best place in the world to get one's physiognomy completely altered is in the squared circle.

The latest fighting actor to join the ranks of make-believe artists is "Gunboat" Smith, heavyweight "pug" of considerable repute. Smith has battled the best of the "leather pushers," many of whom have left everlasting remembrances on his face.

A convention of the cinema pugilists would fill a large-sized room. Perhaps the greatest of all is Jack Dempsey, who is rated as an actor although he hasn't made a picture for two years. Gene Tunney also has answered the call of celluloid gold. Among the others are Tom Kennedy, Larry McGrath, Joe Benjamin, "Tip" O'Neill, Frankie Burns, Jack Dempsey.

ONE AUTO FATALITY
MARS SAFETY RECORD

One automobile fatality marred the safety record of the city for the first quarter of the year, according to records on file at the police station. The victim was a girl, who died from injuries received early last month when she was struck by a motorist at the corner of S. Cherry-st and W. Prospect-ave.

Chicago has a bad record for the period, 157 persons having been killed by automobiles within the limits of that municipality. The last death of the quarter was that of a 7-year-old boy.

Although there usually are several collisions here every month, fatalities are few, the majority of deaths from automobiles in recent years resulting from pedestrians being struck by motorists.

The plans are to be completed and presented to the common council for approval Wednesday night.

JUST A REMINDER
FOR MOTHERS

This is the time to start giving your children a pure, wholesome spring tonic such as Father John's Medicine. It will help their systems to get rid of the poisons which have collected during the winter months.

It will also give the children the added nourishment they need at this time of year to help them to build new bone and flesh.

Father John's Medicine is a preparation of the purest cod liver oil scientifically combined with other ingredients to make it wholesome and easy to digest. Start giving it to your children today.

GREAT VITAMIN STRENGTH
FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

One of the most striking incidents in the picture is a chase between two automobiles. A gang of crooks is trying to prevent the real heir from appearing to claim his inheritance. The hero in the front car fires a bullet into the tires of the pursuing auto and nearly wrecks the car. This is a genuine hair-raiser. "Shattered Lives" is real entertainment in every respect and entire cast and the director, Henry McCarty, deserve to be complimented.

MITT DAM" CASE
HEARING NEARING

Attorneys in Suit Brought by Fox River Paper Co. Go to Washington

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The Wisconsin "milldam" case Monday attracted several Wisconsin attorneys, including Attorney General J. W. Reynolds and one of his assistants, to Washington, where the United States supreme court will hear the case Tuesday.

The main question of the case lies in the Wisconsin "Recapture" laws, whereby the state may take back, after 30 years, any water power project or site, which in its opinion would be to the public's interest to have as estate property.

The Fox River Paper company, Appleton, is the appellant in the case. The company applied, about two years ago, to the Wisconsin railroad commission, for permit to build a dam in the Fox River at Appleton.

The permit was offered to the company, containing the "recapture" clause allowed by the Wisconsin law, but the company refused a permit so worded, insisted that the commission issue it a permit without such clauses and finally took the case to court. The Wisconsin Supreme court ruled against the company and it appealed to the constitutionality of the law to the country's highest bench.

With dozens of five-man, doubles and singles bowlers from Sheboygan, West Bend, Marion, Port Atkinson, Randolph, Mayville, Elcho and Denmark, taking the drive at the Elcho alleys over the weekend in first annual bowling tournament of the Wisconsin department of the American legion, only one change was made in standings and prospects are that none of the first place or even high place leaders will fall in the final onslaught this week, ending Sunday afternoon, April 17. The one change was an important one, however, as J. W. Herdt and J. Gumm of West Bend shot a score of 1191 in the doubles to take first place in the events by a margin of almost 20 pins.

Hush squad event to the Legion Clowns of Mayville with a 2604 score and high singles mark went to J. Manuel of Port Atkinson with a 600 score, which included a 283 mark.

Herdt and Gumm replaced Morgan and Shupinski, Green Bay, who had a 1163. The last Appleton pair among the doubles leaders, J. Balliet and Retza, who had been in fifth place, were shoved out of the select class by the change of leadership. Herdt had scores of 17, 211, 208 and Gumm had 214, 212, 174.

Unbeaten Alab Team Will

Philadelphia—The most prominent group of collegiate golfers in Dixie will invade the east late this month for two matches.

This outfit is that of the University of Alabama, ruler supreme of the college golf field in the southland because of their undefeated record for our seasons.

The southerners are looked to meet

Pennsylvania and Princeton on April 29 and 30. In these two matches, the visiting midickers hope to maintain their untarnished reputation.

The Alabama team will be captained by Bobby Baugh, Jr., present inter-

KIMBERLY VOLLEY TEAM WINS TITLE AT DISTRICT MEET

K-C Men Take Deciding Game from Blue Profs After Tying for First

Outlasting the Lawrence college professors in staying power, the Kimberly-Volley team won the district volleyball tournament of the Wisconsin Wisconsin district of the Y. M. C. A. in the meet held Saturday at the local association and the college gymnasium. Lawrence finished second and the Appleton "Y" seconds, third. The Kimberly team will enter the state meet at Madison Saturday as will the Appleton Y first team, which did not take part in the district meet because of its conceded strength. It tied for first place in the state meet last year.

Kimberly beat Lawrence two of three sets to take the meet. Though the professors eliminated the Papeimakers in a semi-final match, the lower bracket from then on and as the meet is double elimination, with no team dropping out until beaten twice again, the Kimberly team in the final. At that time Lawrence had lost one game and that to Lawrence. Kimberly won the final match and as each had lost but one, that to the other, a final match was held to break the tie. The three professors could not stand the pace with the younger men and took a bad beating.

In the opening games the Green Bay Columbus club beat the Neenah Methodist church 15-4, 8-15 and 15-8; the Lawrence team beat the Little Chute team 15-10, 15-10 and 15-10; the Appleton team beat the Appleton Triangles, 15-7, 15-14, 15-13. In the second round Lawrence beat the Columbus club, 15-14, 15-7; and Kimberly beat Manassah, 15-6, 15-7.

Meanwhile in the second bracket of the Neenah Methodist winners from the Little Chute legion, 15-12, 15-14; and Appleton Y beat Green Bay Y, 15-6, 15-10. Then Appleton beat Neenah 15-12, 8-15, 15-10 and Columbus, 15-11, 15-15, 15-6. Then Appleton beat the Columbus club 15-12, 11-15, 15-4. Appleton then beat Kimberly, after its loss to Lawrence, to see who met Lawrence for first. Kimberly, after its loss to Lawrence, won 15-4, 15-6, giving Appleton third place. Kimberly, after its loss to Lawrence, won 15-4, 15-6, giving Appleton third place. Kimberly, after its loss to Lawrence, won 15-4, 15-6, giving Appleton third place.

Members of the championship team are Al Briggs, Len Smith, C. C. Smith, L. O. Cooke, Erwin Kohl, Ed Krueger, Lloyd Lange and Rudolph Courchane. Members of the second-placed Lawrence team are George Christy, E. W. Clippinger, F. D. Gebhardt, E. W. Hall, R. V. Landis, A. D. Powe, W. E. Rogers and H. M. Wriston. The third-placed Appleton Y team is composed of J. E. Murphy, W. S. Patterson, C. B. Bower, A. Carter, T. E. Orblison, Robert Zaumeyer and M. E. Bacon.

The league adopted the Wilson ball for use this year and made other routine plans for opening day. Governor Fred R. Zimmerman will open the season at Menasha by hurling the first ball. Manager Baetz is getting his men out this week with the sunny weather and several of the veterans of last year will be in suits.

The Appleton Homebrewers softball team continued their winning streak Sunday afternoon by taking both ends of their second double header in two weeks, for four victories and no defeats. The victim Sunday was the Recreation Hall Specials, who lost 10-2 and 6-3. Lutz hurried great ball for the winners allowing but two runs in 17 innings. In the last frame of the second game with one out he was struck by a hot liner from Strutz's bat, but finished the game allowing two runs in 17 innings. Bries caught for the winners.

Strutz and "Chub" Reetz formed the battery for the losers. The Homebrewers desire games with any For river valley teams. For games managers are requested to write J. Shapiro, 1002 N. Oneida-st. or Sam Hill, 532 N. Rankin-st.

LADY LUCK

PAT COLLINS

A weakness back of the plate may prove fatal to the pennant chances of the New York Yankees. Pat Collins, only a fair performer, may again be first-string catcher for Miller Huggins because of the injury to Benny Bengough's arm and the erratic spring play of John Grabowski. Luck for Collins, yes; but not so much for the Yankees, Huggins says.

Badger Oarsmen, With Heavy Suits, Continue Practice in Cold

Madison—Braving the chilly Mandota breezes and with anxious thoughts of the lucky ball players touring the sunny south, the Wisconsin crew and track squads are working overtime during the spring recess when the classroom duties do not interfere.

"Pat" Vall has given his oarsmen a double dose from the very start of vacation, and takes his shells on the lake both morning and afternoon. The boys have been forced to lug their boats over to Lake Monona on several occasions because of the rough water on Mendota, while heavy cotton suits were issued the men by the commodore for protection from the cold winds and water.

These handicaps have been met cheerfully by old "Dad," for he considers himself fortunate in being outdoors at this date, and it is a sure bet that unless the thermometer drops to zero the

FARMER IS AWARDED $125 IN SUIT WITH PRODUCE COMPANY

Milk Firm Broke Verbal Contract, Circuit Court Jury Holds

Holding that the Outagamie Milk and Produce Co. failed to live up to a verbal contract made with John Doyce last April, a circuit court jury Friday afternoon awarded the latter damages of $125 in his suit for $200 against the milk company.

In April, 1926, the defendant promised to employ Doyce, a farmer living near this city, on a milk route, provided he furnished his own truck, the complaint alleged. His wages were stipulated at 20 cents for every hundred pounds of milk he hauled.

He bought a Ford truck for $185 but failed to get the milk route, he alleged. Although he reminded the milk company of its agreement several times, they failed to give him the employment he alleged they promised.

Not only did he have no other use for the truck, but a change in the market since he bought it has caused him damages of $126, according to the complaint. His loss of time, through conferences with the milk company, were valued by him at $80.

The defendant denied that the contract had been made. It was admitted that some conferences were had with Doyce, but no definite agreement ever was reached, it was alleged.

The case, heard before Judge Edgar V. Werner, consumed the entire afternoon.

The jury consisted of Gustave E. Jacobson, route 1, Kaukauna; Martin H. Evers, Little Chute; Mrs. May Uttermark, Seymour; Mrs. Rose Heiden, route 2, Black Creek; Nick J. Huss, route 1, Kaukauna; Paul Hoepfner, Appleton; Joseph Ornstein, Appleton; Ernest Sasnowski, Kaukauna; Mrs. Louis Reis, route 1, Seymour; Mrs. Anna Colling, route 1, Seymour; Mrs. Myrtle Rupert, Kaukauna; C. PREPARE PLANS FOR RECREATION BUILDING

Plans for the recreation building to be erected in Alheta park tourist camp site are being prepared by R. M. Connelly, city engineer. The building will be of frame construction and one story high. It will include ladies and men lavatories, tool room, showers, a large rest room with a fire place and a big screen enclosed porch. The plans are to be completed early next week.

The recreation building will be paid for out of the recent $10,000 appropriation by the common council, which is to be used for the improvement of the camp site. In addition to the new building, new benches and tables will be constructed and placed in the park. The work is being done under the direction of the public buildings and grounds committee, Alderman Wenzel Hassman, chairman.

Romance Of Dodge Heir Nears Rocks As Detroit Anticipates Decree Of Divorce

Detroit—Plans will be written to the romance of Lois Knowlson and Horace E. Dodge, Jr., of the multi-millionaire Dodyes, in divorce court soon, Detroit anticipates.

The decree for which Mrs. Dodge sued several weeks ago is expected to be granted without a contest. As seldom happens in the matrimonial misadventures of the very rich, this case will be disposed of with as little publicity and hubbub as well-paid lawyers can arrange.

MOTHER SEES TO THAT
Dodge's mother, Mrs. Hugh Dillman, formerly Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, Sr., is credited with smoothing the way for such a quiet disposition of the matter. Her son was in Paris when Lois Knowlson Dodge's suit was filed, and Mrs. Dillman at once took the responsibility of telling lawyers what to do about it.

Outwardly, at least, Mrs. Dillman and her daughter-in-law have remained on the best of terms since.

The former Lois Knowlson, the daughter of an only moderately well-to-do family, married young Dodge June 1, 1921.

SCENES OF SPLENDOR
"Pearls for tears," said the superstitious when they saw the bride wearing a string of pearls, the gift of the groom's mother, as her only jewelry.

Florists had transformed the home into a wilderness of beauty. Miss Knowlson was the loveliest of brides in a gown of soft ivory satin, trimmed with priceless rose point lace. The bridal bouquet was the most gorgeous to be had.

There was a bride's book of white parchment, an exquisite creation said to have cost $2,000, with figures representing eternal love painted on the cover.

As in fairy books, there was a honeymoon abroad. When the Dodyes came home it was in the imperial suite of the Berengaria.

Back in Detroit, they plunged into a series of gorgeous social affairs. No conception of social brilliance was too costly for the Dodyes. They had millions galore.

Two children were born, a daughter, Delphine, and a son, Horace III.

"IT HAD TO COME"

Dodge went to work as a manufacturer of motor boats. But he still found time for travel and play. Mrs. Dodge at one time said she was going into business, selling the boats her husband manufactured, but she soon tired of this venture.

"It had to come," explained Mrs. Dodge cryptically when the divorce suit was announced. "Perhaps we had too much leisure. I regret the anguish this will cause my father."

What disposition is to be made of the children has not been made known.

The million dollar home the young couple occupied is closed. There are only caretakers now to save on its beauty and the splendid things within its walls.

The home has been the envy of thousands who were struggling through honeymoon and early married life days in crowded Detroit flats or two-family houses.

POSTAL RECEIPTS SHOW INCREASE OF $5,500

An increase of $5,500.58, or 10.2 per cent, in postal receipts in the first three months of 1927 over the same period in 1926 is reported. At the end of the first quarter in 1926, business amounting to $33,299.15 was reported, and in 1927, $39,199.73.

Each of the three months showed a relatively even increase in stamp sales, but the total gain in February was considerably larger because a large number of special order envelopes were delivered to patrons. The January increase was $1,504.25; February, $2,426.15 and March, $1,569.48. The postoffice gains would indicate good business months.

COMPARES INDIANS TO GREEK RUNNERS

Prof. R. M. Bagg of Lawrence College Addresses Academy of Arts

Madison—(AP)—Prof. R. M. Bagg of Lawrence college, speaking Friday before the Wisconsin academy of Arts, Letters and Science on the Tarahumara Indians of northern Mexico, described their feats as rivaling those of ancient Greek runners.

Prof. Bagg spent three years in the Sierra Madre Mts., the home of the Tarahumara, as a prospector and mining executive. He employed members of the tribe as servants and workmen, and had opportunity to test out their speed and endurance as runners.

"At one time," he related, "I sent my Tarahumara Mozo Isidro from Monterde to Cuteco, a distance of 25 miles, with instructions to return the same day with 10 pounds of provisions. The region traversed is one of the wildest in all the Sierras and has no well marked trails. The distance was more than I usually could ride on horseback.

"When the shadows were lengthening, Isidro came rapidly up the trail with the 10 pounds of groceries.

"At a later time I rode from Palmarero to Chihuahua over an English Railroad line with a measured distance of 25 miles. It was raining that day, and the road was slippery, but Isidro covered the distance on foot with me in 5 hours and 15 minutes and was ready to unsaddle my horse at the corral.

"They offer the best advertising I can think of of the power of endurance of a human being. When I was mining at Monterde they held furious races on Sunday, running all day long up and down Monterde creek, about 5 kilometers at a fast pace. There seemed to be a special incentive to do this. It evidently was their national game."

GAS TAX YIELDED STATE $5,209,805 IN 1926, REPORT

Net Revenue in 44 States Totalled $187,603,231. Says Bureau

Gasoline taxes yielded a net revenue of $5,209,805 in Wisconsin last year, according to data collected by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The revenue throughout the country from this source totaled $187,603,231.

A tax was imposed in all but four states at rates ranging from 1 to 5 cents a gallon, the average rate being 2.58 cents. The tax collections indicate that nearly eight billion gallons were consumed in the states imposing the tax and it is estimated that nearly two million gallons were used in the four states in which no tax was imposed.

The revenue from the tax was allocated as follows: $129,441,520 for state highways; $4,606,479 for county and local roads; $2,338,589 for payments on road bonds and $9,316,363 for miscellaneous purposes.

Power changes were made in the rate of tax than in other recent years. In Kentucky the rate was increased from 2 to 3 cents, in Mississippi from 2 to 3 cents, in North Dakota from 1 to 2 cents, and in Virginia from 3 to 4 cents. Other increases which became effective after the close of the year were an increase in Alabama from 2 to 4 cents and in Montana from 2 to 3 cents.

THE CHINESE WAR MAP

Sweeping northward toward Peking, the Nationalist armies in China have met with little resistance thus far. Northern armies have retreated before the victorious march of Chang Kai-shek's Cantonese. The map shows the present positions of the fighting forces in China, and gives a relative idea of how far the southern troops have progressed, with Canton the general starting point. Above is Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, in command of the Pekingese troops that have been retreating. Below is Gen. Chang Kai-shek, marshal of the southern armies. The armies between the northern and southern forces are pro-Cantonese, and not expected to stand in the way of the Nationalist advance.

STATE SENDS $1,037 FOR EDUCATION AID

A total of $1,037.11 was received by Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer, from the state department of education within the last week as aid for special educational work in Appleton during the past year. A check for $109.34 was received as aid for the home economics classes, $261.61 for the special classes for the blind and deaf, and $221.40 aid for domestic science and manual training classes. This amount is approximately the same as last year.

The school, explained to the students the difficulty in making such a rack and the ability of Mr. Schmalz in building this.

COMMISSION GETS PLANS FOR VIADUCT

City Is Requested to Forward Plans as Soon as It Is Possible

Plans for the E. Wisconsin ave viaduct have been completed by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad and have been submitted to the railroad commission, according to A. H. McDonald, commissioner, who was in Appleton Wednesday morning. Mr. McDonald visited Mayor A. C. Rule and requested that the city forward its plans as soon as possible.

According to the amended order of the commission, the viaduct must be completed by July 1, 1928, and it is expected that work on the project will be started late this summer or next fall. The viaduct will eliminate a double crossing over both the railroad and the interurban trolley line tracks. The cost of the improvement is to be shared equally by the city, the Northwestern railroad company and the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company.

APPLETON YOUTH HEAD OF SPRING CARNIVAL

J. Alden Behnke, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Behnke, 315 E. El Dorado st., graduate of Appleton high school and a former student at Lawrence college has been appointed general chairman of the spring carnival to be staged by residents of the men's dormitory at the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Behnke is in Appleton visiting his parents this week.

The carnival will be held May 11 and all residents of the state are invited. More than 100 men will be acting on 14 general committees under the supervision of Mr. Behnke. The climax of the intra-mural athletic season will be reached when final matches in tennis, baseball, horse shoe, diamond ball and other sports will be played. Many aquatic stunts, including crew races, swimming exhibitions, water polo and canoe tilting matches are included in the program.

The affair probably will be made an annual event.

Athletics Have Become Means Of Entertainment

Madison—(AP)—Athletics. In many instances, have become solely a means for public entertainment, a student amusement activity, and promoted for the general welfare and alumni. W. J. Wittich, director of the School of Physical Education, at the La Crosse Normal School, told city superintendents of schools in session here last week.

Wittich is not opposed to athletics as an institution, the physical education leader continued, "For I am sincere in my belief that there is probably no other field of education that offers greater opportunities for real training in citizenship. On the other hand, I am no apologist for the abuses which have crept into the administration of inter-school athletics. For one to oppose all athletics, is to say the least, suicidal.

"However I will admit there is too much emotional exaltation on the part of the student body in courting athletics, brought about by the medicine man method of creating so called school spirit.

"Looking at the entire matter from an educational viewpoint there are three factors to be considered, the boy, the school and the public. In practice we usually reverse the order.

"Physical education, beneficial to the mass, in comparison to a picked few, has never received the attention it is due. It is this program which has a 'carry over' value after the college life. The major sports, which often are the only activities stressed have little or no carry over value and are undesirable from the standpoint of the mass.

"Physical Education as a means of furnishing the individual with mental and social development received scant recognition until recent years. The fact that an individual is born with certain abilities to be developed has not been recognized. The natural activities that have been handed down should be developed. The importance of satisfiers and annoyers have been overlooked in Physical Education.

"The word 'physical' with many people arouses the old subtle contrast with the word 'mind.' They do not realize the fact that the play of the emotions in physical training activities is of such vital importance. The old dualistic philosophy that the school teacher is responsible for the mind, the Physical Director for the body, the health department for the health, and the park board for recreation, to a measure still exists. The intimate relationship of mind and body are not yet being appreciated to the fullest extent.

Physical education should aim to provide an opportunity for the individual to act in situations that are physically wholesome, mentally stimulating and satisfying, and socially sound.

Physically wholesome does not mean the seeking of false values such as the development of marathon freaks, English Channel swimmers, extreme forms of athletic competition too frequently seen in boys and girls school athletics.

"To provide opportunity for the individual to act in situations that are mentally stimulating and satisfying means: Adequate provision for the development of initiative, leadership, fellowship, and self expression. Mentally stimulating and satisfying does no mean mental gymnastics in the form of unmeaningful and purposeless tactical maneuvers, so-called coordinating movements, tedious drills, spectacular show gymnastics and over emphasis upon technique, and the mechanical carrying out of instructions that are so often unduly emphasized in the coaching process.

"To provide for an opportunity for the individual to act in situations that are socially sound means: Adequate provision for the development of social and moral qualities such as service to society, truthfulness, honesty, loyalty, obedience to authority, modesty, cooperation, courtesy, self restraint, and self control.

"Health is always a means, never an end."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
GABRIEL FOLSON is stabbed to death while swimming at Ocean Town, N. J.

Folson's bathing companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, a business partner; MISS HELEN BARNARD and CARMELITA VALDON.

ANASTASIA FOLSON, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is learned that the death weapon was a piquet, an Oriental knife, and it had been bought on the boardwalk.

It is learned that one CROYDON SEARS is a fancier of curious weapons. He admits buying two knives but not the piquet. Anastasia, an enigma, TITUS RIGGS, architect, to work on the case. DAN PELTON, the dead man's nephew, arrives and is intrigued by some curious French dolls in Folson's room.

Croydon Sears sends for FLEMING STONE, famous detective. He tells him Folson had been blackmailing him and he had fled at the inquest, but was innocent. Stone meets others of the circle, including NED BARRON and his wife, MADELINE, and begins quietly to work. In Folson's room, Stone asks Pelton to produce the dead man's papers, and it comes to light that Carmelita Valdon had stolen some letters from them. Suspicion immediately falls on Carmelita.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XII

"It isn't ridiculous, except that it's not wise to jump at conclusions so rapidly," said Riggs. "But I have felt all along that Mrs. Valdon knows more than she has admitted, and that she is a woman of—"

"Of murderous impulses and of desperate passions and capable of any crime," Miss Folson ranted on. "I knew her sort the moment I set eyes on her, and that was some years ago. She made a dead set for my brother, and they had an affair which, she thought, would end in Garry's marrying her—but it didn't. Garry was just a little too smart for that! But there was a bit of a scandal, anyhow, or other. Garry kept the whip, since then. Carmy and I have been friends outwardly, and she and Garry were seemingly friends, but she was afraid of him."

"Not afraid of him," amended Pelton, "but he had some letters of hers which were perhaps a bit indiscreet. These she naturally wanted to get back after his death. No woman wants her letters flung to the public. So she, unaccountably, she tried to get them. She knew it would be useless to appeal to the police, and she doubted the wisdom of asking my aunt for them, so—"

"You know a lot about it, Dan," said his aunt, with an accusing glance. "I do, Aunt Stasia, and I'm telling all I know, because—well, because Miss Stone rather implied that openness was the best way out."

"I'm not sure I implied all that," Stone, and his face was grave. "Much depends on the nature of those letters. If they were merely indiscreet love letters, they might bring no suspicion on Mrs. Valdon. But if they were of a threatening nature, or proved a real intent for revenge—"

"They couldn't be as bad as that," Pelton said, and was stopped by his aunt.

"Shut up, Dan," she advised. "You've fallen for that woman, as you do for every specimen of that shrew type. Given a low, wailing voice and a pair of dark, love hungry eyes, and any woman can ramp you. Now drop her before you get in too deep. Uncle Garry said I suppose she begged you for that packet of letters. By the way, where has it been all the time? I haven't seen it."

"I took care of it," Pelton said, obstinately.

"I know you did. But where did you find it? In the suitcase?"

"Yes. And I just laid it aside for the moment. I knew she never killed uncle. How could she?"

"Why couldn't she?" retorted his aunt. "She stood next him at the rope; that we know. Stood at his right-hand side. So she had motive and opportunity. As to the weapon, we've no real reason to assume it must have been one of those antique things. It may have been a hotel carving knife. Any woman clever enough to plan and carry out such a scheme of murder would be quite clever enough to manage the weapon part of the business. Now, Mr. Stone, there's your criminal: go and get her!"

Had the case been less serious, Fleming Stone would have been amused at the emphatic declarations of Miss Folson.

She was striding up and down the room, her bobbed hair, escaped from the influence of brilliantine, waving in quivering tuft. Her black lace evening gown was short and the great red rose at her shoulder shook on its stem as she gesticulated with her bare arm, which was held, now aloft, like the Statue of Liberty, and now straight out, as she pointed, in emphasis, at one or another of her hearers.

Interested beyond the fee, for Title Riggs was getting a new light on the beautiful Carmelita: Croydon Sears was beginning to see a way out for himself, and Fleming Stone was hearing and weighing this information, so freely given, and rapidly assigning it to its true place in his collection of evidence.

"Gently, gently, Miss Folson," he said, looking at her kindly. "I know you think you have discovered the one who killed your brother, and it excites your sense of justice, but remember we haven't proved anything and, indeed, have little to bank on. A packet of love letters and a position next to Mr. Folson on the rope in the ocean. I see no more than that, and that, dear lady, is not enough."

"It's enough for me," Anastasia Folson's eyes snapped. She snatched up one of the dolls that was perched on the mantel.

"That's the type she is," she exclaimed as she waved the puppet in the very face of Fleming Stone. "That's the type of Carmelita Valdon: a woman with a serpent's soul!"

"The doll, a singular specimen of French art, did indeed look like Carmelita, so much so that it was surprising. But it had a sly, even sinister, expression beneath the luring smile."

"And the exquisite features, while fascinating, were those of a wicked, delectable nature."

Fleming Stone was interested. "It does look like Mrs. Valdon," he declared.

"Of course it does," Miss Folson said scornfully. "My brother was a fool about women, or rather, they made a fool of him. So whenever he could find a doll who reminded him of one of his favorites he bought it. All of these represent his sweethearts."

Anastasia was a strange mixture of scorn for these amours of her brother and a staunch loyalty and love for the man himself, whatever he might do.

"Why pick on that doll, then?" Title Riggs said, thoughtfully. "Maybe the human prototype of some of these other dolls was the guilty person."

"No," and Anastasia took his suggestion seriously. "You see, I know many of these. I don't mean personally, but I happen to know more or less about them. No doll here is the image of a person down here, except that one."

"I gave a doll to the girl, Myrtle," said Pelton, thoughtfully. "She chose it herself—said it was Uncle Garry's favorite. Maybe she's the—"

"Oh, nonsense about the dolls!" Miss Folson cried, impatiently. "I'm not using that point to fasten this thing on Carmelita Valdon. I only say she had the real reason to want Garry out of the way, and she had the nerve and the wicked soul necessary to the deed."

"And the opportunity," put in Riggs.

"Those things are all required," Stone said, smiling a little at the glib repetition of the hackneyed terms. "But there are other things to be considered. A murder such as this one is considering is the result of careful planning and preparation. Your ordinary bath does not carry a sharp knife around in his pocket on the chance of wanting to kill somebody in a hurry. Nor is that sharp knife easily come by or easily carried about. It means premeditation, and that means a long time and definite purpose. Now, Mr. Folson only arrived here the night before, so who ever killed him prepared for it in a hurry. I mean, in a hurry at the last. I insist that the motive existed long before. To me it seems that some one who had the murder in his heart, was already down here and he had that evening that Mr. Folson is all mixed up with. That he then laid his plans and next morning carried them out with such cleverness that he left no clue."

"The knife?" said Croydon Sears.

Who, saying little, was listening to Stone.

"That—and I think it was bought at the auction room—was a clever dodge. I am not sure it was one of the knives bought that night; it may have been bought at any time, or, indeed, brought here from elsewhere. But it does seem to indicate a lover or collector of the antique, and that may or may not be a clue. Probably not for to my mind a collector would use any weapon rather than one of his own carious."

"Yes," agreed Croydon Sears. "I certainly should have done so."

Stones admits, in the next chapter, that a beautiful lady heads his list of suspects. But who is it?

PROFESSOR POINTS OUT SOLUTION OF TANGLE IN RADIO

Suggests Eliminating Few Stations Which Are More Bother Than Worth

BY RODNEY BUTCHER

Washington—An intellectual appearing gentleman from the middle west recently rose before the new radio commission and offered what most observers with no special interest consider the best—if not the only—constructive proposal for solving the confusion that exists in radio broadcasting and in the minds of the commission itself.

This gentleman is Professor E. M. Terry of the University of Wisconsin. Professor Terry, whose main job is teaching physics to young engineers, established the first university radio months after the pioneering KDKA entered the field. This was WHA.

Building a broadcasting station before power tubes were on the market, Terry did a little glass blowing and made his own tubes and other accessories. He is a leader in radio research.

WAITING FOR PROFIT

It is Terry's idea that the commission could straighten out the situation without hurting anyone who doesn't deserve to be hurt by eliminating without compensation the few stations which are obviously more bother than they are worth and by discouraging the stations which were built for purely speculative motives.

"We know perfectly well, Terry declares, "that many stations on the air have been put there for sale. They are hanging on in the hope of making something out of it. If some way could be dashed, it would be beneficial for everyone else.

"If broadcasting time were divided as I have proposed, some of those on the verge would automatically eliminate themselves. It is safe to say that most of the 150 or 175 stations, established since the Commerce Department lost the power to control broadcasting, were put on the air for sale at a profit."

"We ought to shut down on some of these no-good stations which create hardly anything but interference and we ought to divide the time."

MONOPOLY? NOTHING TO IT

"Eventually, stations are going to move down to the lower wavelengths. If we do open up the low wavelengths, the only fair thing to do is to move some national stations down and not continue the movement to the small ones."

"Just now the fundamental objection to opening up the lower wavelengths is that it throws the burden on the listeners."

Terry has never worried about a radio monopoly.

"It's a foolish idea," says he. "There will be time enough to take care of the monopoly bogey when it develops into something real. There are plenty of remedies provided for a radio monopoly."

MENTAL ABILITY OF GIRLS IS SAME AS THAT OF BOYS

Intelligence Achievement Tests Show That Sexes Do Not Differ

Madison—(P)—Girls are not inferior to boys in mental ability.

Rural pupils lag behind city pupils in intelligence and educational achievement.

These facts were revealed by the recent examination of the Mississippi school system, Prof. M. V. O'Shea, University of Wisconsin educational specialist, told members of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Arts, and Letters last week.

Prof. O'Shea gave these conclusions as an illustration of what educational measurements have accomplished and will accomplish in rebuilding education in the United States to meet the needs of modern life.

"There is a tradition in Mississippi that the girls are not equal to the boys in mental ability, and that they cannot accomplish as much in educational work," Prof. O'Shea explained. "I organized the data secured from my investigation so as to show the status of girls as compared with boys intellectually and educationally. The results are slightly in favor of the girls, and this is true of freshmen in colleges as well as of pupils in the elementary and high schools. There is no marked difference between the sexes, but what over difference there is, is not against the girls, but with them."

"Organizing the data so as to show the relations between pupils in rural sections, in small cities, and in large cities, I find the data are convincing that pupils in rural sections are behind pupils in small cities, and especially in the larger cities, in intelligence and achievement. They are also behind in educational achievement."

"There can be little doubt there is a hereditary factor operating here; capable people are leaving the rural sections and migrating to the cities. Taken as a whole, the rural pupil is at a disadvantage intellectually and educationally when compared with the urban pupil."

Prof. O'Shea described the history of the development in this country of the educational measurement plan. He told them how the process began with the measurement of native intelligence, and how it has progressed to include measurement of different kinds of manual ability, of social and moral development in the individual and the group, and also to include testing of methods of education to see whether or not they are making pupils efficient in everyday life.

School curricula are being reorganized as the latter sort of tests are revealing lack of correlation between school studies and knowledge required in the world of affairs.

"Professor Cook and I made a prolonged study of spelling. We found that the typical American never needs to write more than 1,500 words at the outside. We studied a great variety of writing and listed all the different words used. We suggested that the course of spelling in the schools should be reduced from 15,000 to 5,000 words."

Local Pulper Often Brought His Lunch Home Unopened

Has been completely rundown and without an appetite for years. Tells of quick relief brought by Dreco.

"About a year ago I was badly gasped by fumes while working in a garage and from that time until I started on Dreco a month ago I have been completely rundown," declared Mr. Ted Welzer, 11 E. Appleton, a pulper at the Fox River Paper Co., in a recent conversation with the Dreco man at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store.

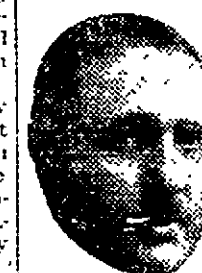

"What little food I ate caused me acute indigestion pains, the acid risings and heartburn were distressing and not so bad that food of any kind was so distasteful and I would even bring my lunch back home again at night without even looking at it."

"Later on my head became very painful, violent pains would shoot thru the top of my head and well nigh drive me crazy. I lost sleep, became very nervous and was such a complete wreck I had to forego my hunting and fishing trips because of my weakness."

"About a month ago I decided to try Dreco and during the first week I noticed a distinct all round improvement and now I feel normal again. I don't know what a headache or nervousness is, I sleep so soundly nothing less than an earthquake could wake me and I have such a good appetite my wife says I'm eating her out of house and home."

Dreco goes right to the vital spot toning up the organs that are weak and aids them to operate as Nature intends. That is why Dreco gives such prompt relief to the stomach, liver, kidneys, bladder and eliminates the poisons from the blood which cause rheumatism and catarrh.

Mr. H. W. C. Marr Baker, the well-known Expert from the Dreco Laboratories now at Schlitz Bros. Downtown Drug Store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Dreco for best results. Go to see him.

THE WAGES OF SIN
The Fun Shop Drama
In Three Acts
By Louise Angel

Act One
(The minister and Mr. Roth, the Sunday school superintendent, are talking things over.)
Rev. Wylie: "The way to make an impression on the young mind, Mr. Roth, is by way of object lessons."
Roth: "I think I get you. I'll try it out on the children next Sunday."

Act Two
(The Sunday school room. Roth is addressing the youngsters' class.)
Roth: "I am going to tell you children about the effects of sin on the heart. First can any little child tell me what sin is?"

Jimmy: "Yes, sir, sin is when somebody else does something and gets caught at it."

Act Three
(The lesson continues.)
Roth: "I hold here a glass of pure water. It represents a pure heart. This poison represents sin. I put it into the water, and the water immediately turns a nasty color. Now, then, that's the way your hearts are after sin has entered. But all hope is not lost. Every person has an antidote. When I pour this antidote into the glass, the water again becomes clear. Grace and faith are the antidotes of sin. Is there any question anybody would like to ask?"

Jimmy: "Let's see you drink it!"

SOME JOE!
Morgan: "I'm going to get a job in a drug store. I've been studying now for 18 months."
Glady: "That's a long time. Studying pharmacy, I suppose?"
Morgan: "Nope. Learning the names of all the candy bars."

"ONE SIDE, FLAPPER, AN' GIVE A CASH CUSTOMER A CHANCE!"

SPARE THOSE BLUSHES

Dear Editor:
"The butler was drunk last night," said my wife. "He tried to roll a barrel up the stairs."
"Where was I when this was going on?" I demanded.
"You," she answered, "were in the barrel."

Having a faithful wife certainly saves a fellow lots of embarrassment!
—R. W. R.

HOW IT HAPPENED
Hart: "What was the cause of Hurley's death?"
Clay: "Well, he was a victim of insubordination buying. An agent showed him how, by going without breakfast, he could save enough to buy a piano; another proved to him that by cutting out dinner he could buy a radio; a third told him the idea of omitting lunch and using that money on the purchase of an automobile. So Hurley started in death before he could get them all paid for."

SALVATION ARMY
OFFICIAL URGES
NEED FOR FUNDS

Field Manager of 1927 Drive
Addresses Congregational Church Members

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—W. E. Bettus, field manager of the 1927 Salvation Army drive in Wisconsin, spoke during the program held at the Congregational church Sunday evening. He presented the need for funds with which to carry on the relief work which is being done by this organization. The Salvation Army is the greatest international and interdenominational organization in the world today. There are over eight million members in its membership and over sixty languages spoken.

Every child should have an equal chance for opportunity and education. Mr. Bettus pointed out. Play is essential to a good Christian character; labor is a necessity and education is a profitable advantage in the race in human life. The aim of the Salvation Army, he said, is to better prepare the children under fourteen years of age from the poorest homes to secure and profit by these factors in life. To this aim fresh air camps have been established in Milwaukee which are maintained solely by voluntary contributions. The overworked mother and the undernourished under cared for child may go to this camp for ten days each summer. Here the mother may care for her family, learn to cook for them, sew, and be taught the way to properly rear her offspring. The children are taught Americanism and American ideals in its every phase. Each family is housed in a separate cottage and may live independently.

TAKE CARE OF GIRLS
Another development in the Salvation Army movement is the home in Milwaukee for the drifting, floating girl. Mr. Bettus said. Over 12,000 girls of this class are taken care of in this and similar institutions throughout the United States daily. There is also a Salvation Army home in Milwaukee for the unwed girl mother. In January this year there were 27 cases in this institution and 167 during the past year, while over 10,000 were taken care of throughout the country, the speaker said.

Mr. Bettus warned his listeners against the solicitor who goes from door to door, sometimes appearing in the Salvation Army uniform. Since the year 1920 the drive has been conducted by a committee of well known local people in each county and the funds taken care of by an appointed treasurer. Under these circumstances one may feel safe in giving to this cause. Waupaca co's, 1927, quota is $1,250. Herbert S. Ritchie, cashier of the First National bank of New London, has been appointed treasurer.

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The funeral of James A. Nesbit, a former resident of Winchester, and an uncle of Mrs. Leonard Cline of New London, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Johnson, Winneconne, was held at 10:30 Monday at the Catholic parish hall with interment in the family lot at the Catholic cemetery.

Mr. Nesbit was born in Ireland in 1853, and came to Wisconsin at the age of eight years. Four daughters survive him. They are: Mrs. James Johnson, Winneconne; Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, Green Bay; Mrs. James Mulroy, New London; and Miss Nellie Nesbit, Winneconne. His two sons are John of Chicago, and James of Milwaukee. His wife preceded him in death several years ago.

DEDICATE PIANO AT NEW LONDON CHURCH

Bible Story Telling Finals
Feature Program at Congregational Church

New London—Dedication services for the new piano, purchased for the Sunday school through the efforts of the pupils, were held at the Congregational church Sunday evening. The program was opened with a piano solo by E. Louis Reuter. This was followed by the dedication ceremony in responsive reading by the pupils of the Sunday school, led by the Sunday school superintendent, Mrs. Harry B. Cristy. The conclusion of the Bible story telling contest was an important feature of the evening's program. From the inter-class eliminating contest, held some weeks ago, the following pupils were chosen for the final contest: From the first group comprising pupils of the fourth and fifth grades, Louise Demming, Sara Jane Caley, Vivian Huntley, Margaret Freeling and Parker Pennington; from the second group comprising pupils of the sixth and seventh grades, Mary Milton, Elizabeth Demming, Ethel Lowcock, Velma Conrad and Wesley Caley.

The program of the first group consisted of "The Story of Gideon," by Louise Demming; "The Story of Esther," by Sara Jane Caley; "The Childhood of Jesus," by Vivian Huntley; "The Birth of Jesus," by Margaret Freeling; "The Good Samaritan," by Parker Pennington. Prizes for the best delivery were awarded to Vivian Huntley and Margaret Freeling. In the second group, "The Story of Joseph," was given by Wesley Caley; "The Story of Abraham," by Velma Conrad; "The Birth of Jesus," by Ethel Lowcock; "The Story of Ruth," by Mary Milton; "The Story of the Sower," by Elizabeth Demming. Wesley Caley and Elizabeth Demming were awarded prizes for the best presentation among these contestants. Judges in the contest included Mrs. F. J. Pfeiffer, C. G. Roberts and the Rev. Virgil W. Bell.

Other pleasing musical numbers during the evening were rendered by Neil Putnam, clarinet solo, Watson Reuter and Wesley Caley, piano duo, and Watson Reuter, saxophone solo.

NEW LONDON SOCIETY

New London—The Women's Study club met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. W. Wendlandt. Roll call was responded to with quotations from favorite authors. Mrs. E. J. McMahon gave a review of a select novel. The rest of the afternoon was spent socially, the following committee being in charge of the lunch: Mesdames E. W. Wendlandt, C. D. Feathers, F. J. Pfeiffer, C. E. Abrams, L. M. Wright, F. J. Jennings, T. G. Roberts and Giles H. Putnam.

The Liberty section of the home economics class of the University Extension division met at the William Trettin home Friday evening. The study of the various ways of serving cabbage occupied the evening's program. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jennie Carroll at Hortonville, Wis. At this meeting the members of the class and their husbands will organize a club known as the Liberty Home Economics club and officers will be elected. One social meeting will be held each month at which cards will be played and prizes awarded and lunch served. The other meeting will be a business meeting and the regular home economics programs studied.

The chairman of the various clubs of this district will meet Wednesday, April 13, at the home of Mrs. Jennie Carroll at Hortonville. Miss Helen Hoffman, food specialist in the home economics department of the university extension, will talk at this meeting. Chairman from Greenville, Hortonville, Dale, Liberty, New London and Hortonville will be present.

Mrs. George A. Lea, Quincy-st., was hostess to a small party of friends on Saturday evening. The guests appeared in disguise, each bearing a gift which was later opened by the hostess. Bridge was played and Mrs. Lea presented guest prizes.

The regular meeting of the mothers' study club will be held on Monday at the home of Mrs. H. P. Freeling. The formal program of the evening will be followed by a social hour. Each member has been asked to bring a friend. The members have created considerable interest among mothers, as child life is studied, and every day problems are discussed. Following is the program:

"The Place of Music in the Home," Mrs. C. R. Reuter.
"The Influence of Pictures on the Child," Mrs. J. Steiner.
"The Value of Play," Mrs. G. Fontaine.
"The Use of Dramatics in the Home," Mrs. A. Dexter.

Gulls Migrate To Rivers
For Annual Spring Spree

New London—Motorists along the river drive between here and the village of Northport during the recent days have noted the flocks of ring-billed gulls which are seen in unusual numbers. They are large birds with a spread which shows them to be the gulls seen along Lake Michigan throughout the summer months, and which are now on a migratory spree. They are on an annual spring excursion to the flood lands of the inland rivers where luckless frogs and multitudes of fish, more frisky than wise, feed their prey.

According to local bird life students who recognize the ring-billed gull and know his habits, this is practically the only time of the year when the birds appear in any great numbers. They spend the winters along the river and lake fronts of the south where they feed upon a multitude of things, both dead and alive. The birds migrate later to the north where in Minnesota and Canada they take up the problems and perplexities of family life. They congregate in little colonies of thirty or forty birds along the sandy islands of lakes and rivers where they make their nests and raise their young. The gull seems to be of the non-migrating species, who feels that anywhere she lays her eggs is home sweet home.

With the young birds ready to take the air the birds make their way back to the place where fishing is best. Fishing stations all along the lakes are favorite hangouts of these picturesque birds, which are of so many type, and therefore a feast for the eye. Besides the ring-billed gull, there is also the herring gull, which is of quite another variety. There is a large colony of this type on the Door-county peninsula, which is often visited by tourists.

GOVERNOR INVITES WORLD INTO STATE TO SPEND VACATION

Leads Radio Listeners on Tour Through Wisconsin's
Lake Region

Chicago—(AP)—Wisconsin, the playground of the Middle West, through its personal ambassador, Gov. Fred. W. Zimmerman, Sunday night invited the world to spend its vacation with it in the boundaries of the Badger state.

The governor, speaking over WMAQ, the Chicago Daily News station, at the request of members of the Turtle Lake Country club, led his listeners along the "shoreline of Lake Michigan, up through the glorious bays, into the primeval forests and southward through the river and coulee region."

Preparatory to acting the part of a "guide" through his home state, Gov. Zimmerman asked their indulgence because he was "neither a real estate man, a statistician, nor a poet."

"Last year," he said, "according to an accurate tally, Wisconsin welcomed 2,600,000 tourists during 100 days of the vacation period. This does not include those who came at other seasons of the year, but there they are, 2,600,000 on one hundred days, 26,000,000 more than the entire population of Wisconsin. They came to Wisconsin in 11 million automobiles, averaging more than three persons to the car. These tourists are in themselves a proof of what Wisconsin has to offer as a playground.

"We invited them to pitch their tents in any of 15,000 available campsites, in the woods, by lakes and streams, or in over 250 public camps provided for the most part free of charge, by the cities of Wisconsin. We issued 61,700 non-resident fishing licenses to them; and gave them their choice of 2,500 miles of trout streams, 5,000 named lakes and 1,500 named streams.

"We would surely want to take in the vast lake country of northern Wisconsin. There are two of these lake areas, but it would be impossible to assign accurate boundaries to them, and it is perhaps safer to speak of this entire northland as a lake area. Here lake life so closely follows the land that it is better to speak of separating them, each different, each with its own unique personality, with its own allurements, beckoning to us to come and enjoy its life-giving, nerve-healing beauty. There too, the roads will lead you into a wilderness of trees, and if you leave the beaten trail, you will find yourself in the forest primeval. The fawn-colored deer will flash by you, partridge will scuffle across your path, and the thousand voices of the woods will repay you a thousand-fold for your trip.

"Waterfalls." North of Merrill we find Grandfathers, a descent of 60 feet in a mile and a half of rapids. The view to be had from the top of the dam is one of the most beautiful in Wisconsin. At the junction of Tylers Fork and Bad River there is a 45 foot waterfall. Tylers Falls, Copper Falls, a magnificent drop of 60 feet is also located on the Bad River. Others might be mentioned, but the grandeur of them all is at the great Manitowish Falls in Pattison State Park, in Douglas County, but a few miles south of the City of Superior. This beautiful fall is only two feet less than the Niagara, and here the Chippewa Indian came to worship the Great Spirit, Gitchee Mundi, a ritual celebrated in Longfellow's Hiawatha.

"The real invitation to Wisconsin is the call of the primeval in Nature to the Primeval in Man. When we invite tourists to come to Wisconsin, we are inviting them to partake with us of the simple life, of the most wholesome outdoor recreations. We are not holding out to them the allurements of a South Islands Paradise. We have it in our power to contribute in a deeper measure to the welfare of our country by offering to the people of our sister states a playground which will send them back to their home and their job satisfied that they have added to their capacity to live, to enjoy, to labor. We offer them a natural Fountain of Youth, where American youth may come to refresh themselves in body and spirit, to cooperate from the ravages of modern city life, to gain fresh strength and vigor to carry on in the great struggle for the improvement of our country and the human race."

125 BOYS AT FINAL SUNDAY SOCIAL AT "Y"

Approximately 125 boys attended the final Sunday afternoon of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. Fifteen reels of motion pictures, featured by Harold Lloyd in "Safety Last," completed the program.

The boys will attempt to raise money to buy a motion picture machine for the boys' division. It was decided at the meeting, Robert Eads announced the 11th club will sponsor in April, the world brotherhood campaign which the regular meeting of the 11th club Tuesday evening will be shortened to a period from 7 to 7:30 to allow the boys to attend church later.

FIREMEN OUT FIVE TIMES TO SMALL FIRES

Biggest Loss Was at South Side Barn Where Damage
Was $400

The fire department was called out five times over the weekend, but in only one instance was there serious damage. Damage estimated at approximately $400 was caused to a building owned by a Mr. E. J. Schmitt, 1137 E. South River street at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The fire started from a running grass fire behind the barn. No damage was caused at any of the other fires. One was a chimney fire at residence of John Dorsey, 314 W. Packard street, 7:55 Sunday morning. The fire was caused by a Mr. Heckle who was slightly damaged by fire caused by an overheated universal joint. The car was parked at 323 W. College-ave when the fire broke out. The fire department did not obtain the first name of the owner of the car.

A chimney fire at the home of Mrs. Emma Scherke, 329 E. Wisconsin-ave at 8 o'clock Sunday morning was extinguished without loss.

An oil stove fire at the home of Michael Dreyfus, 325 E. Washington-ave at 5:50 Monday morning was out before the fire department arrived.

FOUR AUTOMOBILES IN TWO MINOR COLLISIONS

Two minor automobile accidents were reported at the police department over the weekend. William Neuman, 217 W. Pacific-st was driving west on W. College-ave and turned to go south on Cherry-st when he was struck in the rear by a car owned and driven by E. E. Dunn, 207 Meade-st who was driving east on W. College-ave. This occurred at 6:15 Sunday evening.

A car driven by Mrs. Arthur Kreckler, First-st, Menasha, was struck by a car driven by William Lemberg of Clifton at the corner of W. Levee-st at 11 o'clock when Mrs. Lemberg was attempting to make a turn to the left and Mrs. Kreckler was driving east on the avenue. The accident happened about 1:10 Saturday afternoon.

MOTORCYCLIST GOES TO COURT AFTER ACCIDENT

Onond Capener, 124 E. Kimball-st, driver of the motorcycle which figured in an accident at the northwest corner of N. Richmond-st Saturday morning was to be arraigned Monday afternoon on a charge of speeding. Capener, with two companions was riding on the machine when the driver swerved into the curb in an effort to avoid a collision with a car. Capener admitted about 25 or 30 miles an hour when the accident occurred.

Thomas McKinnis, one of the men on the motorcycle received an injury to his leg and Maxvorn Kettelson, the other rider, and the driver were uninjured.

FIND BOYS WHO FIRED AIRGUN AT YOUNG WOMAN

Sergeant Matthew Mc Ginnis Saturday afternoon, arrested two youths on the charge of having fired an airgun at the BB shot which shattered the right glass of a pair of spectacles worn by Miss Cecelia Bednarowski of Menasha while walking on Memorial bridge Saturday afternoon, March 26. The youths are between 3 and 10 years of age and they will be arraigned in juvenile court next Saturday morning. Miss Bednarowski was not seriously injured.

POLICE NAB DRIVER FOR CARRYING FOUR PERSONS IN COUPE

Traffic Violators and Alleged Forgers Face Court Monday Morning

Carrying three passengers in his automobile coupe besides himself cost Edward Englebeck, Oshkosh, $10 and cost of $2.20 when arraigned Monday morning in municipal court. He pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Englebeck drove past the police station Saturday afternoon and was seen and arrested by Officer A. P. Doltgen. The state law prohibiting four passengers in a coupe will be enforced hereafter in Appleton, George T. Prim, chief of police, warned Monday. The majority of cities in the state are enforcing the measure, Milwaukee having been a leader in this respect, as the practice is dangerous to the occupants of the automobile and to other motorists and pedestrians.

Six more persons made up the list of weekend and law violators who greeted Judge Theodore Berg Monday morning. All were violators of traffic ordinances with the exception of two, who are charged with forgery.

A. C. Rohloff was arraigned for forgery and his case was set for 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. He failed to appear. It was signed by the E. J. Schmitt, 1137 E. South River street, who is charged with having passed a worthless check amounting to $32.15, drawn on the First Wisconsin National bank of Milwaukee, and made payable to the Air-Pruf Manufacturing Co. of Appleton. It was signed by the E. J. Schmitt, 1137 E. South River street, who is charged with having passed a worthless check amounting to $32.15, drawn on the First Wisconsin National bank of Milwaukee, and made payable to the Air-Pruf Manufacturing Co. of Appleton.

The other alleged forger is Roy Dunn, Appleton. He cashed a check for $10 drawn on the First National bank of Appleton and signed by John Tracy, Appleton, according to complaint. It was made payable to John Green and endorsed by John Green and Peterson and Rehebin Co. His case also was set for Friday afternoon. He was committed to the county jail in default of bail of $200.

Arnold Zwiers, Appleton, was fined $10 and costs for parking his automobile without displaying any lights. A city ordinance requires that lights be left burning on parked cars. He was arrested Sunday night by Officer F. E. Arndt on E. Newberry-st.

Two speeders each were fined $10 and costs of $3. Eimer, 184 N. Main, was charged with traveling 40 miles an hour on S. Cherry-st last Saturday. Officer Arndt arrested him. The court found E. Church guilty of speeding. He was arrested by Officer Arndt last week but pleaded not guilty when arraigned, and his case was continued Monday morning.

Leo Delford, Green Bay, paid a fine of $1 and costs of $2.20 for making a "U" turn. He was arrested Sunday by Officer Bliss Carnes at the Corner of E. College-ave and Drew-st.

WOMANS CLUB SPONSORS ANOTHER BABY CLINIC

A free baby clinic will be sponsored by the Appleton Women's club at the clubhouse from 9 o'clock in the morning to 5 o'clock in the afternoon on Tuesday. Dr. Sylvia Stuessy of the state health department, will be the examining physician and will be assisted by members of the club health department. The clinic probably is the last at the club this year although there is a possibility of another in May.

Mothers of babies examined at previous clinics and who were asked to bring their babies back in April are urged particularly to attend. Miss Florence Whipple, city nurse, has followed up these cases and many have been attended by their family physicians as advised by Dr. Stuessy.

Those who will assist are Mrs. Charles Teleske, Mrs. Frank Wright, Mrs. W. C. Patton, Mrs. Homer Benton, Mrs. D. P. Steinberg, Mrs. C. O. Gochmayer, Mrs. A. G. Meating, Miss Whipple, Mrs. W. F. McGowan, and Mrs. William Nemacheck.

FORMER RESIDENTS INCORPORATE WIRE CLOTH INDUSTRY

Frank Schmiede, George Shinnors and Mrs. Shinnors Form New Company

Frank F. Schmiede, George Shinnors and Lydia A. Shinnors, formerly residents of Appleton, are incorporators of the American Wire Cloth Company, capitalized at $25,000, which has been established in one of the buildings of the Hills-Curtis Co. at Kalamazoo, Mich., according to a clipping from the Kalamazoo paper. Mr. Schmiede is president of the new company; Mr. Shinnors is secretary and treasurer and Mrs. Shinnors is vice president.

The company will engage in the manufacture of fourmiliner wires and other papermill equipment. Mr. Shinnors and Mr. Schmiede have had much experience in making wire cloth, the former having been employed for more than 25 years at the Appleton Wire Works and the latter having been employed by the same company for 22 years.

The present plant of the American Wire Cloth Co. has room for two or three rooms and a wire stretching machine. In addition to an option on the building which it occupies, the company has been given option on land to the west and north which may be acquired for a 20 to 40 foot mill. Another former Appleton man, G. W. Mockley, who engaged in the foundry business in Appleton about 20 years ago, is president of the Michigan Foundry and Machine Co., which recently leased one of the buildings of the Hills-Curtis Co. The company is capitalized at $20,000. Other officers are Ruth Mockley, vice president and Conrad Schopp, secretary and treasurer.

93 BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED FIRST QUARTER

Ninety-three building permits authorizing construction estimated at $215,225 were issued during the first three months of 1927. An examination of the records at the city hall shows that this is approximately $23,000 more than for the same time in 1926 and is about $74,000 more than for the first quarter of 1925. In 1925 there were 67 permits issued for construction estimated at $187,563. During the first quarter of 1926 there were 57 permits issued for construction estimated at $141,746.

60 BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED DURING MARCH

Sixty building permits authorizing construction estimated at $125,525 were issued by Walter Zschaeche, building inspector, during March. This is approximately $35,000 more than for the same month in 1926 when 24 permits for construction estimated at $92,125 were given. Six permits were for new residences estimated at $28,000; 17 were for new garages estimated at $3,500; 15 were for resi-

ROLLMAN TO MEET WITH COMMITTEE OF CHAMBER

TOTAL AUTO TAXES MAY HIT BILLION

American Motorists Paid Out More Than $750,000,000 Last Year

Washington—More than $750,000,000 was paid out by American motorists in the form of federal, state and municipal taxes last year.

This is an increase of $53,000,000 over the total of taxes paid in 1925. Threats of increased gasoline taxes and promise of another record in automobile sales this year, point to approach of the billion mark in taxes by the end of this year.

Figures showing this great revenue from motorists have been issued by the Department of Agriculture and have been obtained from other sources.

TEN PER CENT GAIN
The Department of Agriculture announces that the total motor vehicle registration in 1926 was 22,901,323 vehicles, which included 19,227,171 passenger cars and 2,764,223 trucks and tractors. This is an increase of more than 10 per cent over the 1925 registrations.

Receipts from registration fees, licenses and other state annual taxes were $253,232,352, as compared with $200,610,421 in 1925. Receipts from gasoline taxes in 1925 totaled $187,596,231. In 1925 they were $146,028,340.

Proportionately, federal excise taxes on passenger cars and trucks, vehicles for hire and on parts, tires and accessories, it is estimated, have brought in $155,000,000, as compared with $145,295,000 in 1925.

LOCAL TAXES HELP
Personal property taxes in 1925 were well over $100,000,000 on automobiles alone, and municipal taxes the same year have been estimated at a total of $15,000,000.

Figuring only a slight increase in these local taxes, plus the motor tax bill for 1926 past the total of $750,000,000.

Most of the money derived from this source is put back into public roads. Motorists therefore may expect a wide expansion of the road building and improvement program henceforth.

dences and garages estimated at $73,450; 22 were for miscellaneous improvements estimated at $20,575.

New Rayon Underthings In Our Downstairs Section

The Downstairs Section is now showing a wide assortment of rayon undergarments excellently made and of qualities that are remarkably good at these low prices. There are both light and heavy grades of rayon used in these pretty underthings and the lace trimmings and finishing touches are far better than are ordinarily expected at these prices.

Rayon Vests at 59c—79c—95c

A rayon vest in the lighter weight, made in the bodice top style, and neatly finished comes in peach, flesh, and Nile at 59c. Any size may be had. Heavier qualities of rayon are used in vests at 79c and 95c. They have the reinforced underarm and the same choice of colors as in the 59c vest.

Rayon Bloomers, Well Made, at $1 a Pair

These rayon bloomers at $1 a pair are so worth while that it will be an economy to buy several pairs of them for spring and summer wearing. Firmly reinforced and nicely finished at the waist and knee. All usual sizes in flesh, peach and Nile. An extra heavy rayon bloomer comes in the same shades at $1.50. Extra large sizes are $1.75.

Envelope Chemise, Lavishly Lace-Trimmed

Regular $1.50 Value

Particularly Low Priced at $1

Envelope chemise, pretty enough for Easter or birthday gifts, come in a good quality of rayon beautifully trimmed with cream laces. Others are made in tailored style in two tones, the body of the chemise being of flesh colored rayon and the hem of French blue. Made with enough fullness for comfort but without bulkiness. All regular sizes in peach, Nile, and flesh. Regular $1.50 values for $1.

New Skirts of Wool Crepe $12

Wool crepe skirts, plain in back, show the finely pleated front and three-toned color combination in shades of tan, blue or green. Wool crepe is an especially smart fabric for separate skirts and practical too, for it keeps slender graceful lines. These attractive skirts at $12.

Spring Renews the Vogue of the Separate Skirt

Now that the sweater and the hip-length sports coat are being worn for any daytime occasion, the separate skirt is coming into its own again. The new arrivals in skirts may be of crepe de chine or flannel or wool crepe and be sure of being ultra smart.

The Bodice-Top Skirt $8.75

The bodice-top skirt of crepe de chine is a convenience that is sure to be well liked. The crepe de chine top makes it possible to wear the skirt with one of the smart new flannel coats and no blouse is needed. When the skirt is worn with blouse or sweater, the bodice top holds it well in place. $8.75.

Pleated Flannel Skirts $3.95

Flannel skirts with the chic pleated front are quite new and fit smartly into their niche in the spring sports wardrobe. Pleats this spring, to be at their best, must be in front only and they serve two purposes: they are the new fashion note and they provide necessary fullness. $3.95.

Flannel Coats for Sports $10

If you plan to be among the early spring hikers, or are already longing to picnic somewhere, you will want a new Botany flannel coat to wear with your new flannel or wool crepe skirt. Trimly tailored and hip length. In yellow, green, black or blue at $10.
